State Scores Sewage Plant Operation

RECOMMENDS EXPERIENCED WORKS HEAD

Report Charges Sewage Never Given Full Treatment For Any Extended Period.

HITS MECHANICAL TROUBLE

Follows Inspection of System Made Jan. 26; Hunter Calls In Consulting Engineer.

Criticizing the operation of the Mansfield sewage disposal plant, F. H. Waring, chief engineer of the state board of health, today recommended the employment of an "experienced sewage plant engineer" to operate the plant.

Waring's report was made public today, and was based on an inspection of the plant made on Jan. 26, by Bruce McDill, a state health board engineer, who reported his findings to Waring.

Meet on Recommendations.

Mayor Claude M. Hunter received a letter containing Waring's recommendations this morning, and immediately summoned to Mansfield George B. Sowers, Cleveland, consulting engineer on the plant, to confer on the recommendations.

Waring's report charged that there has been no extended period during the approximate year of plant operation, when normal sewage flows have been given full treatment at the plant and that alleged mechanical difficulties have not been successfully adjusted.

J. P. Sotherland, operating engineer at the plant since it went into operation last March, has charged that mechanical difficulties have been responsible for the failure of the plant to handle sewage properly. He has contended that the motor drives on the paddle agitators in the aeration tanks were not powerful enough to handle the sewage under full air pressure and that non-clogging pumps have clogged and failed to operate properly.

'Little Business' O. K.'s Digs at New Deal, Sets Off New Uproar.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The little business men's conference today approved resolutions asking more liberal loans and severely criticizing many New Deal measures, amid an uproar that led to forcible ejection of two delegates.

The meeting then adjourned sine die, leaving to the 10 chairmen of its discussion groups the task of drafting the mass of resolutions into proper form for submission to President Roosevelt probably tomorrow.

The ejected delegates were A. S. Shafer, Philadelphia building contractor who also was ejected yesterday, and Robert Kaempfer, self-styled "forgotten man" from New York.

Guards dragged the pair from the commerce department auditorium in an uproarious scene that accompanied summary approval of all resolutions and reports submitted by the meeting's 10 round-table groups

Ask Labor Act Change.

The recommendations approved by the conference asked revision or repeal of the Wagner labor act, modification or repeal of undistributed profits and corporate gains taxes and liberalization of securities and exchange regulations.

Trouble started when Kaempfer attempted to obtain the floor to speak in behalf of the Schwellenbach-Allen bill to finance 3,000,000 works progress jobs.

Chairman Fred Roth ruled him out of order but Kaempfer kept on talking. Guards rushed up to Kaempfer who, shouting in anger, proceeded to tear up a typewritten program he had devised for aiding "the forgotten man."

Newspaper photographers rushed forward, setting off flash bulbs to snap action shots of the outbreak. Immediately members of the conference shouted de-

Hole In Ice Indicates Auto Plunged Into Lake.

ALGONAC, Mich.—(U.P.)—State police reported today they found a large hole on the ice of Lake St. Clair where an automobile carrying two couples was believed to have plunged into the water.

Those missing were Mr. and Mrs. Carl M. Vincent of Detroit and Mr. and Mrs. John Edmunston of Columbus, O. They were riding in a two-door sedan.

MEMORIAL HALL UNDER REPAIR

Extensive Remodeling Marks 50th Anniversary of City's Soldier-Sailor Building.

For its 50th anniversary, the imposing old stone building of the Soldiers and Sailors Memorial building, Park avenue west, is undergoing extensive remodeling and redecorating, with new stag club rooms being constructed in the basement for veterans of all wars and service men.

The building, which for many years has housed a theater and provided club rooms and meeting places for the G. A. R. and auxiliary groups, is being modernized and furnished. Extensive repairs became necessary when it was found that termites were eating away the wooden supports in the basement which have been standing since the building was erected in 1888.

Walter L. Beckley, president of the board of trustees of the building, said that trustees decided to finish the basement into club rooms after it was decided to tear it up and exterminate the termites.

New cement floors have been laid in the basement and steel supports substituted for the wooden columns which supported the first floor. A new heating and

FACES CHARGE

Paroled O. S. R. Inmate Held In Cleveland Murder.

A paroled Mansfield reformatory inmate today faced a first degree murder charge in the hold-up killing of a Cleveland delicatessen store proprietor last November.

The International News Service reported that Willie Caldwell, 22, arrested by Cleveland authorities last night admitted firing the shot that killed Fred Raymont, 68, while his wife, Sophie, looked on.

Reformatory records showed that Caldwell had been received at the institution Dec. 15, 1933, from Cuyahoga county for robbery and was under a 10 to 25 year sentence when paroled April 1, 1937.

Caldwell, the dispatches said, told police that he had been living in Pittsburgh until two weeks ago and admitted 15 robberies there and in Cleveland since the murder.

Ernest Bryant, 25, arrested by Cleveland police as Caldwell's partner the day after the murder, also faces first degree murder charges.

Tokyo Answers Leahy's Quip America Would Be 'Happy' to Meet Japan's Fleet.

(By International News Service)

TOKYO — Admiral William D. Leahy's statement in Washington that he would be "happy" to meet Japan's fleet, even if it were the size of America's, brought a quick rejoinder today from Japan's navy spokesman, who termed Leahy's remarks "imaginative and groundless."

The spokesman, Rear Admiral Noda, said that Japan in no way is menacing Britain or the United States.

On the contrary, he declared, British and American "scare" naval building may constitute a menace to Japan.

The spokesman then went on to criticize other statements made by Admiral Leahy in his testimony before the American house naval affairs committee.

"Admiral Leahy's statement," said Noda, "that Japan is planning 14 capital ships is based on imagination. Our program has not been published.

"Admiral Leahy's assertion that we are building 43,000-ton battleships, based on an Italian report, is groundless.

LACK OF FUNDS HALTS PAROLE INQUIRY HERE

Hurley Recesses Grand Jury Indefinitely After Talk With Attorney General.

THREATENS WHOLE PROBE

Failure of Legislature to Grant Funds to Meet Cost of Probe Blamed.

Lack of funds today was given as the reason behind the sudden and unexpected recess of the special Richland county parole grand jury yesterday afternoon, and also threatened to put a halt to the entire investigation, dispatches to The News-Journal from Columbus said today.

The Richland grand jury, which was in the third week of its investigation at the reformatory, was recessed by Assistant Attorney General George Hurley, who had been in charge of the panel's investigation, after Hurley had talked by telephone to Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy in Columbus yesterday afternoon.

Reports on Progress.

The recess was an indefinite one, and before leaving for Columbus with his staff to report to Duffy on the progress of the investigation, Hurley said he had no idea when the grand jury might be recalled. Foreman James Bailey said Hurley had not told him when the jury might be recalled.

Meanwhile, dispatches from Columbus said that the failure of the state legislature to appropriate the $20,000 Duffy had requested for the investigation, might lead to its collapse. Duffy has already spent an estimated $3,300 of state money on the investigation in Franklin county and here. Duffy,

DEFENDS BILL

Copeland to Address Senate on Lynch Measure Today.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Sen. Robert F. Wagner (D., N. Y.), coauthor of the anti-lynching bill, prepared today to deliver the first speech favoring the controversial measure in four weeks of filibustering debate. He plans to defend the constitutionality of the proposed legislation.

Although it was generally believed that the filibuster had killed all hope of getting a vote on the bill, Wagner said he probably would speak this afternoon in reply to repeated charges that the bill would be invalidated by the supreme court.

Sen. William E. Borah (R., Ida.) and Sen. Walter F. George (D., Ga.), regarded as the senate's outstanding constitutional authorities, already have denounced the measure as contrary to the constitution. Borah indicated that he would answer Wagner's speech.

PLANES COLLIDE IN MID-AIR; BOAT PICKS UP FOUR

Both Plunge Into Pacific, One Ablaze During Air Maneuvers; Rain Squall Blamed For Tragedy; Destroyers Light Waters For Searchers.

SAN DIEGO, Calif.—Two giant navy bombing planes collided in air and sank 70 miles at sea last night in view of scores of warships massed in sham battle maneuvers. Ten men were lost and four were taken from the water injured. One later died, bringing the toll to 11.

It was the navy's worst disaster to heavier-than-air craft.

The planes, scouting for a potential enemy invader as part of the maneuvers, crashed during a squall at 8:37 p. m. PST (11:37 p. m. EST).

One burst into flames and both plunged to the water and sank immediately. Searchlights from several nearby battleships and more than 20 destroyers lighted the area for miles.

Small boats were lowered quickly from the warships. The four survivors were picked up and rushed to the hospital ship reserve. Only bits of floating wreckage marked the scene of the accident.

All night crews of dozens of ships searched for more survivors or bodies of the ten who were lost. Nothing more was found and at dawn every airplane of the fleet, 300 from the carriers Lexington and Saratoga, and other scouting planes attached to battleships were sent out to continue the search.

All available units of the Pacific fleet, they include 38 warships and hundreds of planes. The collision occurred near the dreadnaught Pennsylvania, flagship of Admiral Claude C. Bloch, new commander-in-chief of the fleet. It was a crew from the Pennsylvania that picked up the survivors.

Due to Squall.

Admiral Bloch inferred that the accident was due to the rain squall. News of the crash was not given out at the naval base here until after midnight.

The planes were two-motored craft of the PBY type, considered the most powerful fighting airboats in the world. Each carried a capacity crew of seven men.

PRINCIPAL ILL WITH SMALLPOX

Head of Madison High Placed Under Quarantine; Two Others Confined.

With three persons quarantined with smallpox today, one the principal of the Madison township high school, Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county public health commissioner, urged immunization of all persons who have not been vaccinated in the past five years.

Dr Rehder said that health authorities today were tracing all "contacts" with the persons under quarantine and urging immunization if they had not been successfully vaccinated for the disease.

The persons under quarantine, he said, were Wayne E. Miller, 67 Dawson avenue, principal of the Madison township school, and two adults in another family in the Buena Vista school district. He said the persons were placed under quarantine when their illness was diagnosed as smallpox. A third suspicious case in the Buena Vista school district was being investigated by the health authorities today.

Miller's case was reported to the health department today by the attending physician, Rehder said. Investigation so far he explained had disclosed no cases among any of the school children.

Miller was taken ill last Friday while at school. Olan LeRue, superintendent said. He has been confined since under the care of a physician.

"There is no cause for alarm," the commissioner said, "but we are strongly urging all children at the school as well as the parents who have not been immunized successfully within the past five years to do so at once."

He explained that while a person might have been vaccinated for the disease several years ago the state health authorities recognized five years as protection against the disease.

At Long Last, It Seems Paulette Will Play Scarlett In 'Gone With the Wind'

Chaplin's Wife or Girl Friend to Get Tests for Coveted Role.

(By United Press)

HOLLYWOOD — In case anybody aside from Margaret Mitchell still was interested, it began to look today as if perhaps David O. Selznick had found, at long last, a movie Scarlett O'Hara in the person of Miss Paulette Goddard, the maybe-she-is-wife of Charlie Chaplin.

Selznick would not admit that Miss Goddard would be the film heroine of Miss Mitchell's telephone-book-size novel, "Gone With the Wind." All he'd say was that he's signed a contract with Miss Goddard, and that he'd have a "significant statement in several weeks."

Miss Goddard, who is reported to be pondering a divorce from Chaplin although she never yet admitted that she married him, isn't saying much either. She hinted a few weeks ago that she would play Scarlett, whereupon Selznick retorted with a formal statement in which he said he had not even considered such a thing.

PAULETTE GODDARD

She will, however, be given a Scarlett test and if she's good, according to Selznick, she may get the job. The trouble seems to be that everybody in Hollywood and a lot of people elsewhere, including a colored servant in the White House, have been given tests for parts in the story. Each one of these tests has caused such a flurry of publicity puffs, that apparently there's not an actress in town, with the possible exception of Shirley Temple, who does not believe she could achieve a waist small enough and a temper hot

Going Crusing? Then Check On Your Behavior

By JOAN DURHAM
(AP Feature Service Writer)

NOW is the time for cruise-minded vacationers to check up ship-board customs and

If you're going on a cruise, says behavior.

Arthur Krapf, general passenger agent of a company operating several cruise boats you won't get the most out of it unless you get into the spirit of the thing.

The cruise-director will make every possible effort to do the necessary ice-breaking. But if he doesn't manage to introduce you to the pretty blond who's traveling with her father, don't sit around in the dumps. Try a smile and speaking up for yourself. If that doesn't work, ask the director if he can manage an introduction.

He'll sound out the girl and make her excuses if she doesn't care to be introduced. (She can say she's resting . . . or otherwise occupied . . . or has to stay with her father.)

What about tipping?

There are two people you must tip: the room steward and the dining room steward (your waiter). Optional are the deck steward (you must tip him if you sit on deck), smoking room and bath stewards, the stewardess (if you're a woman and get seasick) and the bell boys.

Then, if the chief steward does some favor, such as changing your seat in the dining room, you should tip him—not less than a dollar.

Ten Per Cent of Cost.

Your total tips are likely to run about 10 to 15 per cent of the cost on less expensive cruises.

On a seven-day cruise, for instance, the room and dining-room steward each should get about 50 cents a day—of $3.50. The deck steward should get about a dollar for looking after your chair and a little more if you ask for special service. The bath steward, too, rates about a dollar for a short trip, two dollars for a slightly longer one.

Only tip the bell boys, smoking room steward or the stewardess if you call them into service—10 cents up, depending on what they do for you.

JOURNEY CLUB HEARS REVIEW AT MEETING

Mrs. O. H. Schettler Presents Report on 'The Citadel'; Contrasts Medical Profession In England and United States.

MRS. CHARLES SULLENS was hostess yesterday at the Women's Club to 15 members and guests of the Journey club when they held their regular meeting. "The Citadel" by A. J. Cronin was reviewed by Mrs. O. H. Schettler.

This book is the story of a young English doctor who sets out to practice his profession according to the highest ideals. With the ruthlessness of the seemingly selfish world many of his high beliefs are trampled and undermined until finally his only interest in medicine is making money.

Such a complete reversal of policy shocks and humiliates his wife who seeks to encourage him to cling to his principles against the apparent odds. At last, just before her death, she manages to pursuade him. Interwoven with the theme of the story is the contrast of the medical profession as it is in Great Britain and the United States.

Luncheon was served at an attractively decorated table centered with a mixed bouquet of spring flowers and lighted candles. The color scheme was in yellow, green and lavender.

The next meeting will be Feb. 16 with Mrs. W. G. Black as hostess and Mrs. Anna Miller giving the paper on "England's People and Customs."

DIAGNOSES AT CITY CLINICS DOUBLE IN '37

Rehder's Report Shows 226 Examined For T. B. Last Year, 137 In 1936.

Nearly twice as many persons were examined in tuberculosis diagnostic clinics in Mansfield last year as there were in 1936, the annual clinic report of Dr. Roy C. Rehder, health commissioner, showed today.

In 1937 the clinics handled a total of 226 individuals while the number of diagnoses made in 1936 were 137, Dr. Rehder said. These figures includes persons from Mansfield, Shelby and the remainder of the county.

The clinics which were inaugurated in March, 1936, are financed by the sale of Christmas health seals each year.

Last year approximately $2,050 was available. This year there will be about $3,600, according to George H. Smith, who was in charge of the seal sale here. Of this amount $2,300 was raised in Mansfield, $800 in Shelby and $400 in the remainder of the county.

Positive Cases.

Of the 226 who went through the clinic last year, there were 59 positive cases, of which 56 were adult cases and three were childhood types of the disease, the report said. Twenty-seven of the positive cases, or 47 per cent, were advanced stages of tuberculosis; 12 were incipient, 15 inactive, three childhood cases and two were effusions.

An effort is being made, through the health department and private physicians to have every suspected case and contact brought to the clinics which are held once each month at Mansfield General hospital.

"The more cases that are discovered in incipient stages, the fewer advanced cases there will be," Dr. Rehder said. "Incipient cases are much more easily checked, and heal in less time."

Of the total number examined last year, 145 were from Mansfield, 75 from the county and six from Shelby.

The clinics are held under the supervision of Dr. T. L. Bliss of Akron, and Dr. Rehdef.

The diagnostic clinics are held the last Friday of each month, and the recheck clinics are conducted quarterly.

Posting of Wages Under Security Program Begins

The posting of wage accounts under the old age insurance program of the Social Security act has begun at the national administrative offices in Baltimore, R. C. Mish, manager of the Mansfield district of the Social Security board, announced today.

This is the second step in the program which provides for payment of old age insurance benefits to workers when they reach the age of 65, Mish explained. The first was the recording of personal information furnished on 44,000 applications for social security account cards in the six-county Mansfield district.

Mish pointed out that the first reports showing amounts employers paid their workers for the first half of 1937 had just been received by the board from the treasury department and made available for posting. He explained that during the first year, reports were made semi-annually, but in the future all reports of employers will be made quarterly.

By the end of June the board expects to be able to answer inquiries of workers as to the status of their wage accounts, Mish said, and is considering procedures which will make it possible for workers to obtain such information at regular intervals.

INCOME TAX IN NUTSHELL

NO. 10

Exemption Allowed Head of a Family.

A head of a family is defined by income-tax regulations as "an individual who actually supports and maintains in one household one or more persons who are closely connected with him by blood relationship, relationship by marriage, or by adoption, and whose right to exercise family control and provide for these dependent individuals is based upon some moral or legal obligation." The exemption allowed a head of a family is $2,500. The phrase "in one household" may be interpreted as meaning the taxpayer's personal residence, an apartment, rooms in a boarding house, hotel etc.

Under certain circumstances it is not necessary that the taxpayer and his dependents live under one roof during the entire taxable year in order that the taxpayer may be allowed the exemption. If the common home is maintained and the parent is away on business or a child is away at school or on a visit, the exemption is allowable. Moreover, if a parent is obliged to maintain his dependent children with relatives or in a boarding house, while he lives elsewhere, the exemption still applies. If, however, without necessity, the dependent makes his home elsewhere, the benefactor is not the head of a family.

The same rule is applicable to the term "living together" in the case of a husband and wife. If occasionally and temporarily the husband is away on business or the wife on a visit, the common home being maintained, the $2,500 exemption still applies. The unavoidable absence of husband or wife at a sanatorium does not preclude the exemption. But if the husband continuously makes his home at one place and the wife at another, they are not living together within the meaning of the revenue act.

"HELL ON ICE," by Commander Edward Ellsberg's (Dodd, Mead; $2.75)

Commander Edward Ellsberg's "Hell on Ice" is one of those seldom successful literary resurrections which really comes off. Partly this is the result of Ellsberg's experience with certain of his other books—"On the Bottom," for example, and "Pigboats." Partly it is because of his technical training as a naval engineer (he was a sort of specialist in raising lost submarines). Mostly it is because the story is fool-proof.

There are today only a few tangible reminders of the "Jeannette" and her trial for the North Pole nearly 60 years ago. The first one Ellsberg saw was at Annapolis: "a stone cross frosted with marble icicles topping an oddly shaped granite cairn." This was a monument to heroic Lieutenant Commander G. W. DeLong and the men who died with him in the Arctic. Of course it meant nothing to a plebe from the Rockies.

Seven years ago a chance article on the "Jeannettee" set Ellsberg to work; De Long's journal, other journals and all the books had to say failed to make the expedition come alive. Two government investigations did that—one the report of the naval court of inquiry; the other some 1,100 pages of the "Congressional Record" covering an investigation made by a congressional committee into the disaster. Those 1100 pages almost justify the thousands of pages of trash in the "Congressional Record."

Ellsberg has put his story into the mouth of a person who actually lived and was a member of the expedition. This is the late Admiral George Wallace Melville, former engineer-in-chief of the Navy. He has woven it expertly from the three journals available, from the books on the matter (very few) and of course from those 1100 pages. There emerges a story of heartbreak, heroism, a little treachery, struggle and death. It may not be a pleasant story, but it is one you cannot miss without doing yourself an injustice.—J. S

Appointment of Veenker as Michigan coach delayed by furore over dismissal of Harry Kipke, writer told.

SEEMINGLY authentic reports late yesterday were to the effect that George Veenker, athletic director at Iowa State, either has been or will be appointed head coach of football at Michigan and, to those who may be pleased to doubt the choice of a comparative obscurity to something of a show-window job, I can only say that I intended to write the same story twenty-four hours ago—but didn't. I can say, too, with considerable assurance, that "Fritz" Crisler, of Princeton, practically dropped himself out of consideration for the Michigan job some time ago.

I'm also afraid, though I wrote of the matter at an earlier date, that Gus Dorais, of Detroit, was never seriously "in." He does better with his present connection in one season than Michigan can or will give him in two.

AS FOR Crisler, he not only wanted the football job but a guarantee that he would get the athletic directorship at Ann Arbor when Fielding H. Yost is automatically retired, three years hence. The guarantee couldn't and wouldn't be given, so Crisler, according to the last heard of him, had picked up his parchesi board and gone back to Princeton.

The report on Veenker was that the official announcement concerning his appointment is being held up, pending approval by the board of athletic control. Actually, the delay, I'm told, was caused by the furore over the dismissal of former Head Coach Harry Kipke, the idea being that Yost is waiting until everything becomes placid again before making the announcement. The same source is authority for the statement that Veenker has been Yost's man from the start—and there's a tradition at Ann Arbor that whatever is Yost's, is Michigan's.

If, as alleged, the choice has been made, it is a strange but necessarily an illogical one, Veenker, for one thing, is not new to Michigan athletics. He was end coach in football and head coach of basketball there a few years back.

FOR another, he got on well at the time with Oosterbaan and Cappon, who seem in as carry-over assistants for the next regime, whoever may head it. But Veenker's football background, as near as I can learn, is confined to that in-charge-of-the-ends job at Michigan and to some high school coaching, at which he was highly successful.

In other words, the man never held the head coach spot in college football. But neither did Ducky Pond before he went in at Yale and he seems to be doing all right.

KIBLERMEN NEAR TITLE

Ontario Faces Weaker Foes In Remaining County League Games.

Ontario high school hoopsters are virtually certain to annex their second straight Richland county league championship this year.

Pacing th title race by one game, Coach Orv Kibler's warriors have only three more games on their schedule, and they are with the two weakest teams in the circuit.

Would Be Upset.

A defeat for the Warriors in any of their remaining games could be put down as the biggest upset of the season.

Ontario does not play Friday night, but is host to Bellville Saturday. Bellville has won only one game this season, and it provides the opposition for the Warriors in two of their remaining three tilts.

The Kiblermen meet Union in their other game, and the Indians are not expected to threaten Ontario's title chances.

With Ontario almost certain to coast to the title, the chief interest in the race will center around Butler and Madison, who are now involved in a battle for second place.

Madison, the only team to defeat Ontario this season, goes to Butler Friday night. The Bulldogs can get a tighter grip on the runner-up position with a victory this week. The Rams can tie Butler by winning.

Face Two More Games.

Butler is confronted with games with Lexington and Bellville after this week's encounter, and Madison will have Lucas and Lexington remaining on its schedule.

The other game on Friday's schedule takes Union to Lexington.

COACHES PLAY AT BUTLER

Hosts to Loudonville Faculty in Return Game Tonight.

The Richland County Coaches basketball team will meet the Loudonville faculty at the Butler gym at 8 p. m. today. The coaches defeated the faculty in a nip-and-tuck game at Loudonville 33-28, and another close game is in prospect.

Kibler, Ontario, and Stearns, Butler, will be at forwards, Saltis, Adario, and Weikart, Lucas, at guards, with "Big Johnny" Rees, Lexington, at center. The coaches have not been defeated since their organization last year.

ILLINI STAR SUSPENDED

Boudreau Accused of Receiving Checks From Cleveland Indians.

CHICAGO —(AP)— Revelation that Louis Boudreau, University of Illinois basketball captain, had been suspended from athletics for verbally agreeing to sign with the Cleveland baseball club and for permitting the club to send $100 monthly checks to his mother, struck western conference athletic officials like a bombshell today.

By CHARLES MARTIN

TITLE ambitions of the Westinghouse Electrics suffered a severe setback last night when they bowed to the fast-stepping Elks outfit, 27 to 21, in a City Class A league game at Senior high.

Victorious in their other starts in the second round, the Electrics were pulled back into second place by the Elks, a half game behind the Yuncker Sports.

In the other melee, Mack's Pure Oils registered their initial City league triumph by turning back the Ira D. Ling Canzois, 31 to 29, in a thrilling overtime period.

Can Still Share Title.

Although defeated, the Westies still have a slight chance of sharing the second round title. Idle next week, the club will swing back into action against the Yuncker team, the following week.

De Correvont to Enter Northwestern U.

CHICAGO —(INS)— Bill De Correvant, most famous prep football star in the nation's history, yesterday announced he will enroll next fall at Northwestern university.

Austin high school's sensational ground-gainer, who plays at half, told newspapermen he had three reasons for selecting Northwestern out of all other colleges and universities. He wanted to go to a school near his home. He wanted to be with a lot of his Austin companions. He has always had a desire to play in the Big Ten.

The Sportsmen are certain of at least a share of the title, as they come back next week to face the Canzois. A Canzoi victory would be the biggest upset in the league this year.

Vern Jones' team, playing with two of its stars out of the lineup, hopped into an early lead last night, but the Elks' brilliant rebounding proved too big a handicap. Steve Voelker and Inwood Smith were out of the lineup.

The Electrics marched to a 3 to 0 lead before Noel Morgan dribbled in to tally the Elks' first points. In quick order, the winners went to work and soon held a 5-3 advantage. The Westies rallied twice to knot the score at 5-all and again at 7-all, but from then on it was just too bad.

Adam Brandt dropped in a rebound to break the 7-all tie and the Elks continued to connect to pile up a 14 to 8 lead at halftime.

Coming back strong after the rest period, the Westies started cutting down the winners' lead and at one time trailed, 18 to 15. At this point, Russ Hoff, Freddie Lewis and Morgan, former Mansfield high teammates, took the situation in hand and the Elks began to add to their advantage with regularity.

Morgan and Hoff topped the winners with eight points apiece, while Howard Poole set the individual pace with 11.

The Pure Oils provided one of the upsets of the season by downing the Canzois. After getting off to an impressive start by forcing the Westinghouse into an overtime to win in the opening round, the Oils failed to click until last night.

Off to Good Start.

Led by Jim Heiser, who collected 12 points, the Pure Oils got off to a rousing start and only once during the opening half did they trail. The Mackmen held a 12 to 11 lead at the half.

From there on in it was a nip-and-tuck battle with the lead changing hands several times. With less than a minute to go, the Oils leading, 26 to 24, Charlie Soprano came through with a goal to knot the score at 26-all.

The clubs went into the overtime and Frost, who substituted for Hazlett, when the latter was ejected from the game on fouls, dropped in a side shot to shove the Oils ahead. Soprano converted a foul shot, but the Oils were not to be denied and Fritz Vogel took care of the affair by sinking three fouls to tee the game.

DAN FINDS WHITE EASY

Heavyweights claimed the spotlight once again on the local mat when the Quality club presented its weekly wrestling show at the Armory last night.

Since the opening of the season last fall, light-heavyweights have wrestled here exclusively in a tournament to find a suitable opponent for the champion, who has promised to meet the winner of the elimination tourney.

Red Head Triumphs.

Last night, in an effort to give the local fans some new faces and a change of weights, Promoter Tim Nolan presented Dan O'Connor, a red-headed Boston Irishman and Ed "Strangler" White, a husky southerner, with O'Connor winning.

O'Connor, weight 220, and White, 240, went round and round for almost 12 minutes before White began pounding Referee Clarence Miller of Newark. O'Connor was well able to take care of himself, but Referee Miller took the count only once and then disqualified the murderous White.

The second fall lasted but 25 seconds, as "Strangler" White tore from his corner at the bell with a blood-thirsty look, but the Irishman met him in the center of the ring, planted both feet in the southerner's face and White went down for the count.

Sterling Davis, the Texas "Silver Streak," did away with Babe Kasaboski, Canadian light-heavy, in straight falls in the semi-final.

Davis, one of the top-notch men of his division, battled the Canadian for 12 minutes before clamping him in the newest torture grip of the Texan's repertoire. Davis, who claims to have originated the new grip, the "Indian back break," used it for the first time last night and successfully eliminated the Babe with it in both stanzas, the second lasting less than 10 minutes.

Grip Is Painful.

The grip is not complicated, but very effective and painful. Davis locked the Babe's right leg with his and with both arms around the Babe's head and shoulders, broke him sideways over his right knee.

Dutch Schultz, Milwaukee, and Ira Shota, Pittsburgh, light-heavyweights, wrestled for 20 minutes to a draw in the opener. — By Carl Graham.

Denies Appointment Of George Veenker.

ANN ARBOR—(U.P.)—University of Michigan officials today denied published reports that George Veenker, athletic director at Iowa State college, had been chosen as the new Wolverine football coach. Alexander Ruthven, president of the university, said "there is absolutely nothing" to the report. Announcement of Michigan's new coach will be made by President Ruthven after it has been confirmed by the athletic board.

Reached at his office at Ames, Ia., Veenker denied he had already signed a Michigan coaching contract. "There's nothing to it," he said.

HOLDS TOW TO DRAW

Tygers Turn Back Ashland, Tackle Akron West Friday

Chalk Up 28 to 24 Victory as Reserves Register 8th Straight Win.

By OSCAR RUHL
News-Journal Sports Editor.

CHECKING off the last of a series of games with former N. C. O. conference opponents in an impressive manner in Ashland last night, Mausfield high school's plank pounders turned their attention to a more difficult task today as they romped through a brief drill in preparation for Friday night's tilt on the home court with the highly-touted Akron West hoopsters.

The Akron outfit comes to the city heralded as one of the strongest cage clubs in the etate, and the fact that the Tygers will have their hands full need not be stressed.

Led by the spectacular Bobby Nash, whom Mansfield football fans will remember as a sensational passer, and Johnny Johnson, his target, the Cowboys invade the Tyger lair with a record marred by only two defeats.

Ready for Invasion.

Mansfield came out of the slam-bang Ashland tussle in tip-top shape, and the squad will be intact for the invasion of the Cowboys.

Handled by Assistant Coach Harry Mehock in the absence of Coach Russ Murphy, who took a plane late yesterday afternoon to rush to the bedside of an ill sister in Denver, the Tygers finished strong to register their second victory of the season over the A's by a 28 to 24 count before a slim crowd.

The victory was the first for the Tygers on the Ashland in a number of years, and the eighth in 13 games this season.

Mansfield did not grab the lead on which it rode to victory until the third period, and the advantage it held was never long enough so that it could coast.

Mehock's charges trailed by a 6 to 4 count at the completion of the first period in which they led only once, and, althongh they tied the count once, did not obtain the lead again until the last second of the first half when Dave Shelley meshed a one-handed shot to put them in front by a 10 to 9 margin.

Delay First Basket.

The home lads counted only four times from the field in the opening half, and their first basket did not come until the final minute of the initial quarter.

After Ashland regained the lead early in the third period on a pair of charity tosses, Jack Dugger knotted the count from the black stripe, and then followed with a bucket to give the localites the lead they held the rest of the way.

Leading 18 to 14 going into the final chapter, the Tygers stayed in front the rest of the way as the hosts made a futile attempt to overcome the lead with a barrage of long shots.

Shelley was the high scorer for the Tygers with seven points, Elmer Dials following with an even half dozen. Vince Barr, a sophomore, paced the losers with 11 points. Ed Snook, mainstay of the Ashland club, was held without a field goal by Ike Smith and Jack Lyons, who shared one of the guard posts.

Reserves Win, 38-20.

The Mansfield reserves registered their eighth straight victory by turning back the home Jay Vees, 38 to 29, in the preliminary tilt. The junior Tygers held the advantage all the way except for brief periods when Ashland held leads in the second and third frames.

STOP REICHERT, HUFFMAN BUT LOSE TO LUTHERANS

First M. E. Cagers Suffer 25 to 22 Setback; St. Pauls Set Season Scoring Record.

COURTIERS of the erstwhile unbeaten First M. E. quintet throttled First Lutherans' sharpshooters, Earl Reichert and Huffman, last night, but still came out on the short end of the score in the feature Class A Church league game at the Y. M. C. A.

First M. E. entered last night's affair with a record of nine straight victories, but dropped a 25 to 22 decision to the Lutherans. It was the opening game of the second round.

Reichert, the league's individual scoring leader, was held to four charity tosses and Huffman, who follows his teammate in the scoring column, tallied five. While the First M. E. players were busy watching the stars, Martin and LeMunyon broke loose to lead the attack, Martin scored eight points and LeMunyon six.

The Lutherans held First M. E. scoreless in the opening chapter and marched into the second period sporting a 3 to 0 lead. At halftime the winners led, 11 to 9. First M. E. outscored the Lutherans in the third stanza and the clubs went into the final quarter with the latter team ahead, 19 to 18. Wert was high for the losers with eight points.

The St. Pauls outfit went on a scoring spree to set a new season record last night and ran unmolested over United Presbyterian, 79 to 20. Maul was the offensive star for the winners by caging 32 points, 12 more than the Presbyterian club tallied.

Central M. E. edged the Park Avenue Baptist, 26 to 25, Mayflower down Episcopal, 29 to 26, and Temple Emanuel drubbed St. John's, 36 to 18, in the other games.

ISSUES SHIFT INTO REVERSE IN DULL MART

Tape Loafs as Initial Losses Run to 2 or More Points In Early Dealings.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Stocks again shifted into reverse in today's market.

Fairly active selling at the opening soon dried up, however, and the ticker tape did little more than loaf near the second hour. Initial losses running to 2 or more points were reduced in later dealings.

Further weakness of American Telephone was a disconcerting influence on trading forces.

Rails and utilities generally were narrow. Bonds and most commodities were uneven, although grain futures were inclined to advance.

Early estimates of last week's freight loadings indicated the total was down contra-seasonally. Shipmens for January were placed at 17.1 per cent under the 1937 month against a year-to-year drop of 18.2 per cent in December.

Stocks of goods held by corporations continued to dwindle study was given a trade survey disclosing balance sheets of 32 widespread concerns a tthe end of their last fiscal year showed inventories were some 12 per cent ahead of the previous periods.

TESTIFIES ARMS PLAN WAS COPIED

LONDON—(AP)—A blond woman "British agent" told from the stand of Bow street court today how for nearly a year she had helped copy plans of Britain's most secret armaments smuggled from the big Woolwich Arsenal in combatting an alleged spy plot.

A slim, black-clad girl identified only as "Miss X" testified against P. E. Glading, former Arsenal employe, and three Arsenal workers accused of duplicating blueprints of army, navy and airforce weapons allegedly intended for delivery to an unnamed foreign power.

The four defendants, arrested under the official secrets act, were remanded until Feb. 7 after "Miss X" had corroborated the prosecution's story of an alleged plot involving a mysterious couple from Moscow.

PARK TO HOUSE SLAVE SHELTER

Famed Station of 'Underground Railroad' to be Showspot.

RIPLEY, O.—(AP)—Historic "Eliza House," famous as the first station in the "underground railroad" of fugitive slaves escaping from the south, soon will be part of a state park.

Col. Al Hatfield, present owner, announced he had accepted a $5,000 offer of the Ohio State Archaeological society for the house and grounds.

The house became a refuge for slaves during the height of the abolitionist struggle in ante-bellum days. It was the residence of Rev. John Rankin, pastor of the Ripley Presbyterian church and one of the leading abolitionists of southern Ohio.

LACK OF FUNDS HALTS INQUIRY

Hurley Recesses Parole Jury Indefinitely After Talk With Attorney General.

however, declined to comment on the future of the parole investigation.

Lacks Investigating Funds.

International News Service reported that Duffy was believed to be unwilling to dip any further into Richland county funds until he is assured that the legislature will appropriate enough money to defray his own investigating costs. That was believed to be the reason Duffy summoned Hurley, Assistant Attorney General Paul Hergenroeder and Investigators John Kilbane and Albert Frazier back to Columbus.

His only comment, according to International News Service, was: "I want to talk over the investigation with Mr. Hurley. So far the state has spent between $3,300 and $3,400 in Franklin and Richland counties on the probe."

The Associated Press reported that Duffy was of the opinion that it would be useless to gather information at the expense of Richland county if he was unable, through lack of funds, to pursue "leads" uncovered in the investigation here.

The United Press said that unless funds are made available Duffy might never call special grand juries in other counties where he has planned investigations. Those counties include Madison, Union, Summit, Cuyahoga, Allen, Stark, Mahoning and Lucas.

Costs County $600

Records at the courthouse today showed that Richland county has spent nearly $600 in jury and witness fees in the investigation so far, aside from the money spent by the state. When Duffy called the grand jury, county officials were informed that they would have to bear the usual grand jury costs. To date, fees of the 15 jurors, including mileage, has been $555 for 12 days they have been in session, and witness fees have amounted to $41. Bills for stenographers and bailiffs have not yet been submitted.

Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott and Clerk Fred Zellner said they knew of no protest from the county to Duffy concerning the expense of the grand jury, but most county officials have voiced their disapproval of inflicting the cost of the inquiry on the county.

The Franklin county grand jury was the first called by Duffy. It submitted a partial report and recessed, and the Richland grand jury was the second to be called. It submitted no report yesterday, the sudden recess called by Duffy precluding the preparation of a report.

When he started the investigation, at the request of Gov. Martin L. Davey, Duffy asked for a legislative appropriation of $25,000. The senate approved an appropriation of $20,000 but the house failed to add its approval. Later an attempt was made to attach the $20,000 appropriation as a "rider" to another bill, but the house defeated this move.

The Franklin county grand jury was in session from Nov. 22 to Jan. 12. The Richland grand jury convened on Jan. 17.

Thomas C. Jenkins, former superintendent of the Mansfield reformatory, had returned to Mansfield yesterday morning from London, where he is head of Loudon prison farm, to testify, but he was not called into the grand jury room.

The jury spent a major portion of its time investigating financial transactions of the reformatory dating back to 1925, but did hear testimony from a number of inmates. Hurley said the investigation of financial transactions "tied in" with the parole investigation.

"We are of the opinion that Britain and the United States are the greatest sea powers in the world and that no country could menace them.

"Yet, despite their position they have started building. Maybe they are thinking about creating a world police force.

"Furthermore, Admiral Leahy's declaration that the Japanese, German and Italian navies are linked is groundless."

Anti-Sales Tax League Signs Up Richland Backers

The Anti-Sales Tax League of Ohio, organized at Akron a month ago, moved its forces into Mansfield and Richland county today in a campaign to eliminate the retail sales tax from all commodities except motor fuels.

Three petition bearers and solicitors will be in the city and county until the last of next week, it was said, to obtain signatures in an effort to place the sales tax question before Ohio voters at the November election.

The league, headed by Dr. Oscar Hayes of Akron, seeks at least 350,000 signatures by September, the number nesecary to have the proposed amendment to the state constitution placed on the ballot. About 50,000 signatures already have been obtained, a representative of the organization said today.

Expenses of conducting the anti-sales tax drive are paid from contributions of merchants and business establishments. Members of the league base their campaign on the contention that the sales tax is crippling the buying power of the people by $52,000,000 annually, the amount of sales tax collected.

Sponsored by 2 Clubs.

Sponsored jointly by the Rotary and University clubs, the institute is designed, Bruce said, "to give the citizens of Mansfield a clearer and more profound understanding of the vital problems facing the world today."

The forum meetings, to be held on five consecutive Monday nights, will be conducted on a non-political basis. There will be no admission charge.

The other speakers who will appear during the institute and their topics are:

Feb. 14—Alfred Edwards, London, England, business executive who will speak on "Organizing the World for Peace."

Feb. 21—C. Douglas Booth, London, traveler and lecturer, "World Economic Co-operation."

Feb. 28—Harry H. Love, Ithaca, N. Y., professor at Cornell university, whose topic will be "The Rise of Nationalism In China."

March 8 — Allen D. Albert, Paris, Ill., sociologist and lecturer and former associate publisher of the Minneapolis Tribune. He will talk on "Can Any Nation Live Unto Itself."

Bruce said today that Boy Scouts had been enlisted to deliver 5,000 programs for the institute to Mansfield homes Saturday and that other programs for the entire series will be distributed at the first lecture.

Forum periods will follow each lecture and the audience will be encouraged to ask questions of the speakers, Bruce said.

Woman Freed In Killing of Husband's Girl Friend.

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— Mrs. Ada Szczytowski, 32, freed on a charge that she was guilty of murder in the slaying of her husband's girl friend, has taken him back and turned her attentions to caring for her three children.

Spectators in Judge Rudolph Desert's courtroom cheered and applauded as a jury of men returned a verdict of acquittal after one hour and 40 minutes of deliberation.

She shot and killed Irene Kirstein, 26, a clerk in her husband's bakery Nov. 26. She pleaded self-defense and testified the girl attacked her with a knife.

The husband, Rudolph, aided his wife's defense. He told of relations with the girl and how he attempted to break off with her.

PUSHES DRIVE FOR MEMBERS

Junior Commerce Association Sets Quota; Dent Urges Long-Range Program.

Seeking to extend their scope of activities in the city, the Mansfield Junior Association of Commerce last night opened a membership drive at a dinner meeting at Hall's restaurant on the Ashland road.

With a goal of five new memberships each, members of the association at last night's meeting were asked by Atty. Francis O'Brien, president of the group, to "be salesmen for the next few weeks."

Speaking briefly to the group, Floyd F. Dent, Boy Scout executive, said the Junior association has "a very definite place in the community in promoting good government and helping to combat juvenile delinquency."

Urging the adoption of a long-range program and a closer study of city affairs, he asserted that "your organization can serve as a check on old political methods and help to hold the old politicians in the traces."

Eugene Earick, secretary of the association, presided during the session.

The Junior association was organized about a year ago, and its membership includes business and professional men under 35 years old.

BOYS, GIRL HELD

Guns Found In Car Halted as Gas Tank Goes Dry.

LAWRENCEBURG, Ind.—(U.P.)—Police held a 16-year-old girl and three youths for investigation after their arrest at Aurora, Ind., near here by City Marshall Wonder Brooks. Brooks found them in an automobile which had run out of gasoline. In the car were two revolvers, rope and rubber hose.

They identified themselves as Patricia Ashbridge, 16, New York; Joseph Boland, 17, Homan Belknap, 16, and Frederick Gruter, 16, Long Island.

Questioned by state police, Cincinnati and city detectives, they denied they had committed robberies with the revolvers.

Their only offense, they said, were driving away from filling stations without paying for gasoline and oil.

CHAPTER XIX

Caradad looked gravely into John Severance's inscrutable eyes. Rather a funny question he had asked her. He was her host for an afternoon, and now he wanted to know if she were a stickler for proprieties. Severance must be—all right. He was supposed to be rather a famous man, from all she had been told.

"Why?" she countered.

"Thought, maybe, you were shying from the idea of dining in a bachelor hall without the benefit of a chaperon. Lief's wife will serve very well, I assure you. They're a sober pair."

"Is their last name Ericsson?" Caradad wanted to know.

"No. Sorenson—Danes. I've had them on the place a long time; I should say, they've had me. Karen bullies me. You'll notice it."

Severance went on to tell about his place. It was nothing pretentious, merely a small farm. The house was old but roomy, and made a good place to store a lot of belongings. He wintered his horses there and kept a room for himself, to be occupied without notice at any time and season of the year. He could stand the city only about so long, he confided to Caradad. Then it stifled him and he had to get out.

He lapsed into a long silence, leaving Caradad free to observe the seemingly endless miles of the city. Presently, the houses began to gather little clusters on the flat prairie, frequently around some huge manufacturing plant. Then acres of truck gardens that expanded into real country. Farms.

"Remind you of home?" Severance asked suddenly.

"A little." There was a note of wistfulness in Caradad's voice. "It's very different, but it's nice to see so much clean sky again."

"I know what you mean. I'm like that. I've crossed deserts where the sky drives men mad—taken my oath, if I ever lived to see another town, I'd never leave it. One can get too much of anything, don't care what it is."

"Money?" Caradad hazarded.

"Yes. I'm not talking from experience exactly. But I've seen plenty of cases. There's your friend Nick Tankersley. He doesn't know how much he's worth, I dare say. But he didn't make any of his wealth. He might amount to something if he had. I'd say, off-hand, that money is one of the things one can get too much of the easiest, if you know what I mean. But what made you suggest that? Burdened?"

"No indeed!" Caradad laughed. "Our family never was like that. My own experience with a bank account is rather new—since my father died and left me what he had. I suppose I shall have to learn something about investing . . ."

Severance gave her a sharp look.

"Unasked—for advise is a dangerous thing. But I hope that you have some one dependable and strictly honest to look after your affairs."

"Oh, I have! Judge Pomphrette, one of my father's oldest friends. He helps me with everything and he's—dreadfully conservative."

"On the bench, is he?"

"Yes, indeed. A very prominent man and a dear."

"That sounds all right. I'm no great shakes as a business man. I leave it all to chaps I can trust and who don't gamble. But there are plenty of men who are not above taking advantage of women in business, you know."

"I suppose," Caradad observed thoughtfully, "that there are many good opportunities for investing in a city like Chicago."

"If you're really talking about investments, Miss Vardell, it's no better than plenty of other places. For gambling, yes."

"It's funny, but I like to gamble."

"You? You're kidding."

"Really I do."

"Then get over it. I'll bet your judge doesn't approve."

"Dear, no!"

With a shake of his bare head, Severance changed the subject and talked of other matters until the farm was reached.

Caradad was much pleased with the Sorensons. Karen was a motherly person, serene and slow-moving. She gave the girl a warm but subdued greeting when she took her in charge. Caradad was made to feel at once that any friend of "Mister Yon" was a friend to Karen. Lief was a stocky man with twinkling blue eyes set in a round pockmarked face. He had the two horses ready for the riders.

"So the little girl thinks she ride the Joe horse, eh?" he chuckled as he brought up a restive gray. "He's a feelin' very fine."

"He'd better not try any of his tricks today," Severance observed carelessly. "He's got a real rider. Hold him, Lief, until Miss Vardell says she's ready." He held out his hand for Caradad's foot and swung her to the saddle. While she was settling her feet in the stirrups, he sprang easily to the back of his own mount, a sturdy bay.

At Caradad's quiet order, Lief released his firm hold on the reins and stepped back. The "Joe horse" celebrated his release by rearing to an almost vertical position and coming down solidly on his forefeet. His rider sat easily in the saddle the while, pulling him in with a resolute hand, calming him with a reassuring voice as he circled and curvetted about for a moment.

"He's nice," was her verdict, patting the gray shoulder with one hand.

"The poor devil had no choice," Severance remarked. "Thought we were going to see a good show. Well, come along."

He led the way down a lane to the main highway, crossed it and entered a dirt road that had a corn field on one side and woodland on the other.

Caradad was glad that her escort was not inclined to talk. There was no sound here, save the soft thud of hoofs and the creaking of leather. It was good to be out in the quiet open spaces like this, best of all to feel the springy stride of the horse under her, to watch the road ahead over a pair of alert, pointed ears. It was easy to forget the worries of yesterday, now. When the horses crossed a plank bridge over a creek, the hollow thumping was like the music of drums.

"We'll turn off here, if you like," Severance remarked presently, indicating an open gate with his crop. Beyond, Caradad saw an unused road winding through trees. "It doesn't go far," he chuckled, "but, while it lasts, you can pretend it's the forest primeval. Ever do any steeplechasing?"

"No, indeed!"

"That horse you're on is a jumper. We hit the creek again shortly. It's not wide, but the banks are fairly steep. Try it."

"You think I won't tumble off?"

"Nonsense. Just put your horse at it and keep your reins picked up—go with him. Watch me. I'll go first."

Caradad observed closely how Severance put his bay at an easy gallop, watched his body-balance as the horse cleared the ditch and landed by a safe margin. "There you are," he called back, bringing his mount to a standstill. "Let's see you do it—just go with him."

She made a perfect landing, reined up alongside her teacher with flushed cheeks and shining eyes.

"That's fun!" she decided breathlessly.

"We'll have you riding the hounds next."

"And can I have a pink coat and say 'yoicks, yoicks'?"

"Absolutely." Severance grinned as he looked at her small body, lost to view in the sweater coat he had insisted she wear because of the change in the weather. Its sleeves were rolled back clumsily to give freedom to her small hands. "And, after the hunt, we'll gather round a bowl of steaming punch and swap lies. That seems to be the way they do it in the prints. Which reminds me that we'd better complete our circuit and get home before Karen scolds."

The ride ended in the farmhouse yard after a swift canter up the lane.

"It was wonderful, and I'm famished!" Caradad sighed as she slipped to the ground and gave the "Joe horse" a final caress on his distended nostrils before Lief led him away.

Karen had spread the table for two in the seldom-used dining room and had a small wood fire to take off the chill. It all was very homelike, Caradad decided, so much that it—hurt a little. More like Farrabow than any place she had seen since she started on her travels. But that slight feeling of depression vanished like magic when Karen appeared, flushed from her labors in the kitchen and bearing a large platter of crisp fried chicken. The other edibles appeared in quick succession and Severance seated his guest at the table.

"If you don't get enough, it's your own fault," he warned her. I'm going to be quite too busy to look after you."

"Don't bother about me, please," Caradad said seriously. "And don't bother me, either."

After supper, in an armchair drawn up before the smoldering logs, the girl smiled blissfully at her host who sat near, his boots extended on the hearthstone.

"I think," she remarked solemnly, "that I never had a nicer afternoon. And I know I never had a nicer supper. I can't tell you just how good I feel, Mr. Severance."

"Too bad you don't smoke a pipe," he replied, between leisurely puffs. "That's the top notch before an open fire—after one of Karen's suppers."

"I really should help her do the dishes, I think. If I don't have some exercise, I'm liable to go to sleep on your hands. I did eat heaps."

"Nonsense. We'll sit here for a time, while the boys dine. There's no use trying to hurry them when they have the chance to eat here."

"The boys . . .?"

"Tom and Jerry."

For Double-Quick Cough Relief, Mix This at Home

Better Than Ready-Made Medicines. Easily Mixed.

Here's an old home remedy your mother used, but, for real results, it is still the best thing ever known for coughs that start from colds. Try it once, and you'll swear by it.

It's no trouble at all. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking is needed—a child could do it.

Now put 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of actually better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for four times the money. It keeps perfectly, tastes fine, and lasts a family a long time.

And there is positively nothing like it for quick action. You can feel it take hold instantly. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the inflamed membranes, and helps clear the air passages. No cough remedy, at any price, could be more effective.

Pinex is a concentrated compound of Norway Pine, famous for its prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1938.

Complaint is being made that too much of the "youth movement" is at 80-miles an hour.

Condoning law violations in order to avoid adding to the number of unemployed is at least as good an excuse as any for a non-enforcement policy.

Sonja Henie's American earnings to date are estimated at a half million dollars—so she's probably among those who still regard this as a land of opportunity.

Thinking About Parking Meters.

PARKING METERS will probably be much discussed in Mansfield for some time to come, following the recommendation by Mayor Hunter that these devices be installed on some streets here, as a means of reducing traffic congestion and also to produce money needed to add several patrolmen to the police department.

Use of parking meters in designated blocks of certain streets has come into gradually increasing acceptance in a number of cities within the past few years, the customary plan being to meter an hour of parking time for the nickel dropped into a slot of a registering device, which is set on a standard at the curb, with a red signal appearing when the hour ends.

Mansfield's traffic congestion problem is steadily becoming more acute. Consideration of the advisability of installing parking meters as a part of its solution is entirely logical.

May it be suggested, however, that in advance of any definite action, the entire matter be subjected to thorough investigation and study, so that confusing changes in traffic regulations, such as were experienced last year, can be avoided in the future.

See Value In Long Service

WITH all the discussion about many channels of useful employment being closed to men over 40, it is interesting to note that railroad management has long recognized the advantage of keeping experienced and dependable men in service to a reasonable retirement age.

A recent survey report on railroad employment says: "It is commonly accepted in railroad circles that the efficiency and safety that are traditional with railroads are enhanced by, and come in large degree from the long service of employes and from the progressive dependability of maturing men certain of lifetime employment."

Statistics compiled in Michigan show that of the total of all the state's railroad employes, 51 per cent are more than 45; that 37 per cent have been employed on their lines for at least 20 years; 21 per cent for 30 years, and 11 per cent have had 40 or more years of service.

An incident comes to mind of a boy in a neighboring city, who, shortly after graduation from high school, took a "temporary" job as relief messenger boy for a railroad company. It was an opening into which his talents fitted so well that he is now completing his forty-first year of service with the same company, in a present position of high responsibility to which he gradually advanced.

The real problem of today seems to be the development of a plan under which capable men of advancing years will be fitted into forms of employment in which their experience can continue to be of value, instead of discarding them because of a slow-down of manual speed.

A Case That Deserves Study.

STUDY of the case of a man living near Mansfield whose record of cruelty to animals has extended through thirty years, and who is now under workhouse sentence for brutal mistreatment of a dog, might have value in the general field of criminology.

While kindness to dumb animals is very generally regarded as a quite common human attribute, here is a person who appears to have habitually taken delight in torturing any animal that came within his range.

When psychology and psychiatry have delved further into the causes of such unnatural behavior, and when steps have been taken to insure against continued reproduction of that species, a long forward step will have been taken in civilization.

The Way to Cheaper Insurance.

A SUBSTANTIAL reduction in bank robbery insurance rates has just gone into effect, according to announcement by the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters. The reduction, which averages more than 10 per cent, applies in all states except New York which continues to have the lowest rates in the country.

This reduction follows one made in June, 1936, and is based on a continued lessening of bank robbery losses. The effectiveness of the activities of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, plus the use of the time-lock safe with the counter-cash limitation plan, are given much of the credit for the drop in losses.

From the standpoint of the general public, their reduction is a concrete example of the fact that it lies within the people's power to cut the costs of all types of casualty insurance—by lessening losses.

The elimination of accident claim frauds, ambulance chasing and similar criminal activities likewise have a salutary effect on the casualty insurance rates structure.

Atlantic City's Plight.

FINANCIAL troubles in Atlantic City make other cities feel prosperous and solvent. The city's debt is reported as "exactly nine times as great as the average for all cities in the United States of 50,000 to 100,000 population." A local survey commission is at work digging out harrowing facts for the enlightenment of taxpayers.

This same debt is said to be "almost five times the national average per capita," and "the ratio of the over-all debt to estimated true property valuations is well over three times the average for cities of this size."

Other cities may take to heart the obvious lesson that conventions, bathing beauty pageants, a world-famous board walk and a fine climate don't make a town well off unless its civic affairs are efficiently managed.

DOESN'T HE KNOW WHEN TO STOP?

Prices and Wages Trouble Administration

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Prices are too high. Few families are able to pay them. They have to skimp like everything. Consequently merchandise accumulates on retailers' hands. Naturally they cut down on buying, which reacts adversely upon wholesalers and basic producers.

We call it over-production, but it is not that. It is under-consumption.

Such is present-day White House reasoning, as clearly explained by President Roosevelt, to account for our current business recession.

We should deflate, in technical economic language.

TOWARD INFLATION?

Oh, no, prices are not high enough.

They are so low that capital refuses to invest itself in industrially productive enterprises; there is no profit in them. Farmers cannot sell their crops for enough to pay for raising them. Thus they (one-third of our population) are in dire straits, which makes hard times for everyone.

Most of our industrial magnates agree on this proposition, speaking for big business. Agriculture Secretary Wallace indorses it in behalf of the farmers.

That is to say, according to their reckoning, we should have IN-flation, or at least RE-flation (up to the highest past prices) to restore prosperity.

A CHANGE

In other words, the recession is due to too high prices or too low prices.

To some folk it may seem confusing.

Incidently the whole Roosevelt administration initially was for higher prices; now, with some exceptions, like Secretary Wallace, it is for lower ones—an additional puzzle to figure on.

IMPOSSIBLE?

Anyway, the Rooseveltian philosophy recognizes that a slump in prices must not be accompanied by a slump in wages and salaries, or the two slumps will offset each other and there will be no up-tilt in buying power.

Industrialists testify that this is impossible.

For example, the United States Steel Corporation already has decreed a big wage slash for office workers. It doesn't seem likely that it would have done so at this political juncture if it hadn't been necessary for financial reasons.

President Harold G. Moulton of the Brookings Institution concurs that prices cannot be cut without wage cuts.

NARROW PROFIT MARGIN

These authorities generally are rated by liberals as reactionary, prejudiced, "not to be overly trusted."

Nevertheless there certainly are industries which operate on a narrow profit margin. If they have to cut prices, maybe they DO have to cut wages, to "break even." The railroads do, probably. Their past misdeeds unquestionably have a deal to do with their existing embarrassments — but their past dates back two or three generations.

We are dealing with the 1870's; not the 1938's.

Electric utilities are more recent; nevertheless obsolescent, financially considered.

UNBALANCED

Speaking, as of today, prices rise, consumption is crimped.

If prices fall, production is crimped.

Wages ought to rise as living costs rise; they do not do it.

Purchasing power ought to rise as wages rise. That does not happen, either.

The balance is not maintained.

WORKER HIT

The worker is stung anyway.

If prices rise sharply his emolument lags.

If they subside he promptly feels the effect of it in his pay envelope. Big Business trims his pay anticipatorially.

Discontent Is a Habit.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SHE'S always discontented.

Ever since she was a child she has been that way. No, her life hasn't been marked by tragedy. She has always had enough to eat and wear, a decent home, kindly friends. But, somehow, she could never be quite happy. Always there was that nagging sense of failure and frustration . . . always discontent, spreading its grime over every circumstance.

"I suppose it's my disposition," she sighs, "but that doesn't make it any easier to bear. How I envy people who are born contented. They just seem to draw good luck to them. They always have nice things happening to them. If I could only be happy-go-lucky like that . . . if I could only be contented—"

And of course she could be contented if she really wanted to. For discontent isn't an inherited handicap . . . we are not "born contented or discontented—"

Discontent is a habit . . . a deliberate habit from which we can break ourselves as surely as we break any other silly or vicious habit.

How does that habit start? Simply enough. Some trivial childhood hurt . . . the other boy has a better bike . . . the other girl has a prettier dress . . . the other kids live in nicer houses than you do, have parties and you don't. So self-pity and resentment start. Why should you have all the bad breaks? Why should Fate pick on you? And yet they tell you that you should be "contented with your lot" and "count your blessings!" Well, you won't! You'll show 'em!

Just for spite. You won't like anything!

And so, out of your hurt and envy and resentment, comes discontent . . . comes the habit of picking flaws in everything. A queer, unhappy habit. What satisfaction can you get out of it? But you do get satisfaction—a sickly, secret sense of power. The sense of spiting Fate, spiting society.

Making yourself seem important by making yourself and everyone you contact miserable.

And yet, at any moment you could have dropped that misery—if you had so wished. At any moment you could have been contented, instead of discontented—

For it's entirely up to us whether we're happy or unhappy in this life. We can't help what happens to us but we can help what happens in us.

Two people will meet exactly the same circumstances—one person will be contented, the other discontented. That isn't because the situation seems ideal to the first person. No situation is ever 100 per cent satisfactory to anyone. There's always a flaw—always a chance to grouch if you're looking for one.

One person will look for that because he has acquired the habit of looking for flaws and grouching about them.

The other person will pass by the flaws and look for pleasant possibilities, because he has acquired the habit of looking for pleasure.

Does that mean that we should go around grinning like Cheshire cats . . . being a little ray of sunshine when everyone else wants to sit in the shade? It certainly does not. But it does mean that we can make our own terms with life. We can be chronically happy or unhappy, just as we please, despite the shenanigans of fortune.

And if you personally, don't please to be happy—if you choose to squawk—what then? By all means, go ahead and do as you please. Wallow in gloom if that is your favorite pastime. But don't expect the world to applaud your act. For it's not any more noble or necessary to be discontented than it is to chew your nails. They are both disgusting, self-indulgent habits.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"Bone of Contention."

"That's a bone of contention between them." That means it is a subject on which they cannot agree, a source of argument and dissention, perhaps, every time they meet.

The allusion of course is the unbeautiful one of dogs fighting over a bone.

The expression is an old one, being traced back as far as 1576, when it appeared in the "Permabulation of Kent" by Lombarde.

Keeping Step

Trust Buster Behind Licensing Bill.

—By LESLIE EICHEL

NEW NRA or trust busting? The trust busters seem to have won—lining up behind the Borah-O'Mahoney federal licensing bill for interstate corporations. The bill has plenty of teeth—and for that reason is being opposed by the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Donald R. Richberg, last of the NRA administrators, however, has been urging a new "legal" NRA on President Roosevelt.

Robert H. Jackson, new "white hope" of the New Dealers and solicitor general, is for trust busting. He is supported by the liberals. In fact, even conservative Republicans support that—for the most trust busting of the past has been under Republican regimes, beginning with Teddy Roosevelt's. And it has been popular without being "revolutionary."

But the Borah-O'Mahoney bill would be "revolutionary."

BOTH?

If business slides much more, the government undoubtedly will step in with some new sort of inflation and a planned economy, to "control it," which means regulation of prices. Thus a federal licensing bill would not be enough. The cry for a modified form of an NRA would continue.

Thus, there is a likelihood that if anybody can put a clear-minded project before President Roosevelt which would incorporate both, we may see a fight for planned economy and the breaking up of private monopolies at the same time. In other words, even if the president does support the Borah-O'Mahoney bill that is no indication he will not go farther if a stronger plan is presented to him in concrete form.

Yet one must take this into consideration:

The world trend is toward monopolies, not from them. The only question in the end may be: Shall they be privately controlled by a few? or controlled by the government? or publicly owned on a communal basis?

(The latter is not communism, but a term for socialized administration.)

BIG NAVY—WHEN?

With two billions being granted by congress for military purposes in two years (including the new $00 million urged by President Roosevelt in his latest naval message), Americans may ask, "Where are the new ships?"

Well, ships are not like autos—turned out on an assembly line.

The government expenditures will not be fully expended under six years. As a matter of fact, the American naval construction plan has been materializing slowly. Other countries have found the same difficulty. Shipyards are not geared for high speed. The personnel, for one thing, is lacking.

Thus, the naval race—and do not mistake, that is exactly what it is—is rather like a slow-motion picture. Great Britain and the United States will have navies unapproachable by any other navy six years from now—only because no other nation can spend the hundreds of millions required. And there is a terrific amount of wastage in naval building. Each job seems hand-made. And there is no return on the investment—except insurance.

PERSONNEL

As for personnel:

Probably the best investment the government could make at the present time would be the training—free—of hundreds of thousands of young persons in some specific vocation.

If "prosperity" ever returns—as it will—we shall continue to see multitudes of persons on relief (and there permanently) because they have no vocational training, or cannot be fitted into any place. And yet jobs will be crying for men with specific training.

This is a major tragedy. It can mark the degeneration of a people, of a nation. Hardly anyone seems interested in it.

Timely Editorial

Texas Might Divide.

There is talk again of dividing Texas. The idea bobs up occasionally and is not entirely an idle dream. For Texas came into the Union with a proviso that it might divide into as many as four states.

We have grown used to the complement of 48 States, more or less sovereign. There being no more territories within the limits of the Nation proper, waiting for admission, that number has seemed to be final—unless Alaska, Hawaii or Porto Rico should get in some time.

Texas, however, might upset the apple cart any time, without waiting for the consent of the other States. Cut Texas into four, and we would have 51 States.

The present agitation is in southern Texas, with San Antonio as the hub.

As far as the rest of the country is concerned, we would prefer the Lone Star State to any four star galaxy.—Minneapolis Journal.

Health Advice

Fresh Air Essential to Health.

—By DR. ROYAL COPELAND

WITH increased knowledge concerning the air we breathe, there are still many, many persons who overlook the need of fresh air and the getting of great quantities of it in the sunshine. Of course, we meet those who are known as "fresh-air fiends." They obtain their enjoyment of life and at the same time promote health by their efforts to get all the fresh air possible. Perhaps the majority of city dwellers, however, deprive themselves of needed fresh air and sunshine.

Human beings, like the animals and plants, require fresh air to maintain health and life. The cells, tissues, organs, muscles and joints of the body, as well as the brain, can only function if there is an adequate supply of pure air.

The air in which we live exerts a certain pressure upon our bodies. This is commonly known as the "atmospheric pressure." It serves to keep our bodies intact and prevents collapse of the physical structure. Any change in this pressure causes vital changes to occur within the human body.

The scientists tell us that the normal atmospheric pressure is about 15 pounds to a square inch. The individual of average size who lives at sea level, it is amazing to learn, is subjected to a total pressure of more than 15 tons. Yet we could not survive without it; that pressure is absolutely essential for normal functioning of the body.

Air Pressure Varies.

One in good health soon accustoms himself to the atmospheric pressure, whatever it is. But occasionally, as in mountain climbing and in flying, certain disturbances occur because of sudden changes in the pressure. Weakness, severe headache, nausea and actual collapse may occur as a result of the unfamiliar condition of high altitude. There is a marked difference between the air pressure as found in New York City and in Leadville, Colo., a mile above sea level. Gradual approach to the higher level permits the body to adjust itself, but in flying that difference in level may be reached in a few seconds. For this reason aviators have tanks carrying oxygen which can be breathed to neutralize the effects of the altitude in which they fly.

Changes in atmospheric pressure occur, too, when men go below sea level. This is observed by those engaged in building underwater tunnels. To prevent evil effects from sudden variations in pressure, there are provided "decompression chambers," devices for control of pressure at different levels.

For those who live and work always at one level, having a constant atmospheric pressure, no matter what it is, an abundance of fresh air and sunshine is needed. Too little attention is given to this health requirement. It is essential to your welfare. Do not overlook its importance.

Life Doesn't Care.

I'VE LEARNED something.
But it was a shock.
I suppose it always is . . . I suppose it's good for a human being suddenly to have Life shove a knobby fist under his nose and growl: "You don't count. You are not important. It doesn't matter in the least whether YOU are happy of not. Existence isn't a show put on solely for your benefit and the sooner you get it out of your head that it is, the happier—and the more useful—you'll be.

If I had half the sense of the puppy that is sleeping at my feet, I'd be able to remember that remark at a time when I need it.

I'd not be hurt by any little thing that anybody says or does.

I'd not look upon disappointment or defeat as a personal insult.

I'd mind my own business and let you mind yours and if you ask my advice I'd give it but I'd not be forcing it upon you.

And sooner or later, by dint of keeping my eye fixed on the strange and comic and pathetic and tragic activities of this old world, I'd arrive at the comforting conclusion that no man, no matter how high and mighty he may think himself to be, is the center of things. . . . I'd be learning that none of us is the audience in this universe. We're all of us up there on the stage. The show isn't for us, we're part of the show—and nobody is out there on the other side of the footlights. We're all by ourselves, shining in the sun, dancing in the moonlight, or hidden by the dark.

We're nobody, we're everybody. We're nothing, we're everything. We don't count, we count enormously.

Life is always telling me this. I'm always listening, always forgetting. I'm always having Life's knobby fist shoved under my nose and hearing him roar that all he wants me to do is my job and not to be thinking about my own happiness but to be carrying my share of the load of the world and be letting Life himself take care of my troubles and my vanities and my anxieties.

Over and over and over again I learn that.

Always I know it's true.

Always I forget it, and always I swear that I'll never forget it again.

But it IS hard to remember that Life doesn't care whether we are happy or not but only wants us to do our job.

McIntyre's New York Day by Day

JEROME ZERBE, a silken-voiced young man with a collar ad profile, has carved out a somewhat enviable metropolitan niche, snapping candid shots of the showy night club crowds. He is to "cafe society" what Cecil Beaton is to the international set.

His field of action is El Morocco, which has the after-midnight popularity of the old Texas Guinan rookery, plus a bit of polish. There are waving white palms against a ceiling of Mediterranean blue twinkling with stars. Zerbe is responsible for the zebra decor of the wall seats.

He is capitalizing on the New York reaction to polite snubbing—even in pot-luck photography. He trains his camera on only the whopping spenders, the minked and silk-hatted hadjis of frivolity along with the inevitable sprinkle of magnificent heels. Hoi polloi thus is in a twitch to be snapped.

Zerbe came to town from Cleveland almost stone broke and majored in rough going until he caught on with his pictures. Today all is changed. He has his duplex in the latest swash, a valet and a barn-like living room filled with art and book treasures. Done during a depression!

The recession has not yet cast adritt the personal stooges. Wherever Fannie Brice goes merry-making she takes along the owl-faced Roger Davis just for the laughs he provides—at least for hor. The notorious Peppino is shared between Phil Plant and John Perona. Until his passing Steve Reardon, an ex-cop, often accompanied George M. Cohan on his more frivolous moments. But no one had so much fun with or made so much money out of stooges as the late Ted Healy. He often had a night out with his gang of rowdy harlequins, cuffing them about in the bars and night places just as he did on the stage. And enjoying it hugely.

Ted Healy had less of that quality dubbed "ham" than any performer I ever knew. He was—as his estate showed—not interested in the money side of acting nor in the fame that often accrues. He was a clown because it was fun and nothing else but a good time interested. He never used make-up and the clothes he wore on the stage were the same on the street. Yet he had his moments of arriere-pensee. Now and then people would recognize him wandering through the galleries and much of his $1750 a week salary went to buying beautiful flowers for those he admired. But he didn't want to be twitted about these sentimentalities. He preferred to be thought a shade on the tough side.

The new type of comedy has nothing of the hearty abandon and jovial roughage that characterized Ted Healy, Ed Wynn, W. C. Fields and other laugh makers. It is more labored and studious—the Stroud Twins and Oliver Wakefield, for instance. The effort is to puncture some person or institution in the manner of a Peter Arno cartoon without having the Arno riposte. Much is imitative of the English school of comedy. After all, there is still fun in the whack of the bladder and the zing of the slapstick for those practitioners who know how to use them skillfully. Comedy doesn't need a full dress suit and a monocle.

Yet I wonder if I would roar today as I used to at Nat Wills with his ridiculous tramp outfit and blacked-out teeth. He had me on the edge of hysteria several times—especially when he would look about furtively, edge over slowly, talking swiftly all the while, and reach down for what seemed a lost coin. And then in utter disgust quickly wipe his fingers on his trouser leg.

Thingumbobs: James Gordon Bennett popularized the Pekinese, his favorite dog, in America . . . Bide Dudley was once an end man in a minstrel show . . . Strickland Gillilan, who makes a living telling funny stories, confines his reading almost solely to tragedies and poems of sorrow . . . Orson Welles, the 21-year-old wizard of the theatre, is a protege of George Ade . . . Billy Gaxton, known as the stage's luckiest star, hasn't been able to find a suitable play for a year but he has a profitable perfume business on the side.

There was a swell candidate prospect for the League of Parsley Haters at the Sert Room last night. He not only snatched the sprig away and hurled it to the floor, but ground it under heel.

Swept by soft airs, so beautiful

SETS ONE DAY ASIDE TO HEAR JUVENILE CASES

Anderson Adopts New Probate Schedule; Urges Domestic Relations Court.

In a move to place his court on a more systematic basis, Probate Judge C. J. Anderson today had adopted a policy of hearing juvenile delinquency cases only on Wednesdays.

An advocate of a domestic relations court for Mansfield, Judge Anderson said: "We had to work out some sort of schedule to provide more time for probate matters.

"The growing juvenile problem has been requiring more time than anything else, while only a few years ago probate judges in counties the size of Richland devoted only about one-eighth of their time to children's cases," he pointed out.

"In urgent cases, it will be necessary of course to deviate from our plan, but generally we hope to hear children's cases only on Wednesdays rather than have them scattered throughout the week."

Cites Need of Court.

Asserting that a domestic relations court is the only solution to the problem here, he added that the court, if established, should be headed by a young judge.

"Some of the most difficult cases any court has to deal with come into the juvenile courts, and I believe it requires a young man with a better understanding of youth problems to decide them fairly," Judge Anderson declared.

His idea of a domestic relations court, he said, would be one that could devote its entire time to divorce, alimony and juvenile cases.

With divorce cases on the increase, Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston already has expressed his approval of the domestic relations court plan, explaining that domestic and juvenile problems need more attention than the common pleas and probate courts can give them under the present set-up.

HALT THAT COLD!

Put the Brakes on It Fast With This Four-Way Treatment!

No cold can be given an inch! The more rope you give a cold, the more you do to hang yourself!

No cold is a "light" cold. No cold can be ignored or neglected. The cold that is pooh-poohed today is the cold that takes a serious turn tomorrow.

Deal with a cold in a business-like manner. Treat it for what it is—an internal infection! Treat it with a cold medicine not a cure-all.

The Treatment That Answers!

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine (LBQ tablets) are what you want for a cold!

They are expressly a cold treatment, and not a "cure-all."

They are internal medication.

Bromo Quinine tablets do four important things in the treatment of colds.

First, they open the bowels.

Second, they check the infection in the system.

Third, they relieve the headache and fever.

Fourth, they tone the system and help fortify against further attack.

Grove's Bromo Quinine tablets are nothing new or untried. They have been in use over 40 years and are the largest-selling cold tablet in the world.

That, in itself, is enough to assure you of their efficacy and dependability.

Play Safe!

The moment you feel a cold coming on, do the wise thing. Go right to your druggist for a box of Bromo Quinine tablets. Start taking the tablets immediately and you'll usually break up the cold in 24 hours.

Bromo Quinine tablets come in 35c and 60c sizes. The 60c size is the better "buy." It gives you almost 20 per cent more for your money.

Ask your druggist for Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine (LBQ tablets) and insist upon getting what you ask for. It's your money you're spending!

MEN LOVE Peppy GIRLS!

IF you are happy and peppy and full of fun, men will take you places. But, if you are cross and always tired out, men won't like you. Men don't like "quiet" girls. They want girls who are full of pep.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling thru" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening discomforts from the functional disorders which women endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Pinkham's Compound, made especially for women from Nature's wholesome herbs and roots, has helped women for over 60 years.

Make a note NOW to get a bottle today WITHOUT FAIL from your druggist—let Nature help you be the lively, peppy girl you should be.

TAX RECEIPTS STILL BEHIND 1937 FIGURES

Business Picks Up at Kolb's Office But Payments Trail Last Year's Collections.

Business picked up yesterday at the office of County Treasurer John E. Kolb as the collection of first-half real estate taxes moved into the second day, but total receipts for the day were well below figures for the second day last year.

Receipts of real estate and special assessment levies for the first two days of the collection period were $18,525 as compared with $25,023 for the same period in 1937, Kolb's records showed. Tax books opened Tuesday.

Of the amount collected this week, $7,455 was taken in the first day and $11,070 was collected yesterday. In 1937, the first day's receipts totaled $12,894 and collections the second day amounted to $12,129.

Conservancy Tax Due.

Collections of the Mansfield conservancy district levy which also began Tuesday, reached $2,258 today, Deputy Treasurer Russell K. Erdenberger said. The conservancy tax, which amounts to $36,000 this year, is collected by Erdenberger in a special office in the courthouse basement.

The rain today reduced the number of property owners who visited the treasurer's office to pay their taxes, and indications were that collections this week would drop far below the $65,893 collected during the initial week of the first-half collection last year.

Total charge for the half year in the county is approximately $600,000 in current levies. For the entire year the charge, including delinquent taxes due, is $1,513,176. Taxes are payable until March 20 without penalty.

ON PROBATION

Man, 78, Given Suspended Jail Sentence For Assault.

Leander Wilcox, 78, was given a suspended 60-day jail sentence in municipal court this morning on a charge of assault and battery.

Wilcox was arrested and his case heard in court Tuesday. Sentence was deferred for Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch to question other members of the family. The affidavit against Wilcox was signed by his step-son, Herbert Moser, who charged that the older man hit him with a chair, knocking him out of bed. Moser, former ward of a state institution at Columbus, filed the affidavit against his step-father at the instigation of fellow WPA workers who testified that he came to work many times with evidence of being beaten.

Witnesses for the older man said that the step-father was mistreated by a number of step-children, and that he provided a large share of the support for the family. The family lives on West Fourth street road.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

I was ashamed to go to the Doctor!

Little did I realize that most women who have children, suffer from it (hemorrhoids). My pain became so severe I was frantic. I couldn't walk, I couldn't sleep, I couldn't sit down. Finally I went to a doctor. He told me that I had hemorrhoids and recommended a suppository to be used privately at home.

If you suffer as I did let me recommend that you get a $1.00 box of ZIRIL Suppositories containing 12 treatments. This wonderful prescription relieves the pain and torture within a few seconds. No narcotics or harmful drugs, easy to use. Can be depended upon to give you quick comforting relief from pain.

HITS OPERATION OF SEWAGE UNIT

State Report Scores System, Recommends Experienced Plant Engineer.

enced personnel at the plant, Waring's letter said:

"In the best interests of the municipality, the Mansfield Sewage Works operation should be under the supervision of a Class A operator (a registered engineer with six years of experience in sewage plant operation, of which two years credit may be given for graduation from an engineering college of recognized standing."

Waring said the inspection disclosed that there were some mechanical difficulties with certain equipment features.

"The inspection showed that only a partial modification of sewage was being accomplished on this date, approximately one-fifth if the sewage flow only being admitted to the aeration tanks."

Sotherland, who was appointed operating engineer at the plant by former Mayor Earl A. McFarland, and re-appointed this year by Mayor Hunter, does not have the experience in sewage plant operation to qualify as a Class A operator, Hunter admitted, explaining that Sotherland had what is termed a Class C rating.

Waring added, however, that while the state health board recognized it "to be the least desirable procedure, an agreement was entered into with the city by this department for the employment of an inexperienced engineer, provided the city would arrange for part-time technical supervision of the sewage treatment works by an operator of acceptable qualifications until such time as the plant was working normally. . . . Your city has not fully complied with this agreement and the supervision as described was had but for the limited period of six months.

"In this time, all plant operating difficulties and mechanical difficulties were not corrected and by evidence transmitted by the technical supervisor in reports to the city and this department did not warrant placing full responsibility on the local personnel, either from a technical or administrative point of view."

Waring's reference to a technical supervisor applied to the employment of James Collier, engineer of the Elyria sewage disposal plant, in that capacity here. Council passed legislation on Aug. 16, 1937, under which Collier was paid $150 a month from March 20 to May 20, and $125 a month thereafter until Sept. 20, when his service terminated. Since then, Sotherland has been in complete charge of the plant.

Calls for City Resident.

Although Mayor Hunter would not comment at length on Waring's report until he had had more time to study it, he pointed out that the city ordinance which provides for the employment of sewage plant personnel specifies that the engineer in charge shall be a resident of Mansfield. He said he didn't know of a sewage plant engineer in Mansfield who could qualify as a Class A sewage plant operator.

Hunter said he planned to confer later with Collier, admitting that it would be necessary to employ a technical supervisor again.

Waring said the department's findings showed that the plant "as designed for Mansfield is basically satisfactory, and although there are yet mechanical difficulties to be corrected, proper adjustments can be made for successful plant operation, provided full co-operation is had between designing engineer, superintendent of plant operation and equipment manufacturers."

He concluded that phase of his report by reiterating that the "operation of the plant be placed under the supervision of personnel thoroughly experienced and qualified for this service."

Puts Responsibility On City.

Waring declined to place any responsibility for final payment of the plant—due Feb. 6—on the state board of health.

Under terms of the contract the city held up 2 per cent of the total contract price for one year, with that amount to be paid when the city finally accepted the plant. Sotherland's claims that some of the equipment was not operating as it should was partly responsible for calling for a state health board inspection. The amount of the final payment is $6,000.

It was learned, however, Waring said, that under the state code of ethics the state health board is required to approve plans for all public sanitary projects but that the responsibility for proper construction and installation rests with the city.

Hunter and Sowers were expected to decide a part of their conference today if that equipment which is not considered satisfactory.

Also expected to confer with the board today was Fred R. Nelson of the Ihm company, Toledo, which installed the rotary paddle equipment in the aeration tanks.

Original specifications called for 10-inch paddle, but it was found, according to Sotherland, that the 100 horsepower motors were insufficient to turn them under full air pressure. Later six-inch paddles were installed and the angles of the paddles changed.

The plant was built, at a total cost of $331,000 with the aid of a PWA grant, and was put in operation last March.

MEMORIAL HALL UNDER REPAIR

Three rooms in the basement have been sealed with wormy chestnut wood, with ceilings of a special acoustical composition. The floors will be covered with asbestos tile in colors, and antique light fixtures were chosen for the rooms and over the stone fireplace. The furniture will be club chairs, davenports, tables and desk in early American chestnut.

The first floor will be modernized with enameled woodwork, painted walls, Venetian blinds and draperies. The two big rooms, one at the front and used as the G. A. R. club room since the building was built, and the Spanish War veterans room directly back of it, will be thrown into one, by opening the arch in the wall which separates them.

The first floor will be used as a meeting place for veterans organizations. Although no G. A. R. meetings are held now, it will be primarily a G. A. R. club room as long as any of the Civil War veterans live, Beckley said.

The second floor, with its big assembly room and kitchens will be used by patriotic groups other than war veterans.

Beckley said that the remodeling had been made possible through savings from income on the building. The Scarab Amusement company has a lease on the Madison theater, which is a part of the Memorial building. Trustees said today that contracts for the first and second floor remodeling had not been let to date and they could not give an estimate on what the work of modernizing the building would cost.

The board is comprised of Beckley, Mrs. Carrie Willett, secretary-treasurer; R. H. King, William Voegele, M. Dale Ward, S. V. Fox and Herbert W. Gibbs. Trustees are appointed for seven-year terms by the common pleas court.

Although provision was made when the memorial was created, to levy a special tax for its maintenance, this has never been necessary because the building has been self-supporting, as well as paying for all of its own remodeling and redecorating, the trustees pointed out.

Three groups of veterans are meeting in the building at the present, the Spanish War veterans, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Disabled War Veterans. Others in the township who are eligible and will use the new basement club rooms after they are completed are the Rainbow Association (veterans of the 42nd Division); the 37th Division association, the Richland County Reserve Officers and the Marine Corps.

$25,000 PROJECT TO CLEAN UP AND BEAUTIFY PARKS OUTLINED

A city parks project involving the expenditure of $25,000, largely WPA funds, to clean up and beautify Mansfield parks, was outlined at the Chamber of Commerce last night when members of the publicity committee working with the Parks and City Beautification committee of the chamber, met to discuss the project.

The proposal calls for approximately $19,000 in WPA funds and $6,000 in city funds. The WPA money would be spent for labor in connection with improvements on South park, Middle park and North Lake park.

G. V. Sowers, chairman of the C. of C. parks committee, said that WPA heads at Columbus had approved a grant of $19,000 for Mansfield, and that the request had been sent on to Washington for final approval. The committee expects to get the proposition before city council in the near future.

The plans include cleaning out the dead trees, trimming the good trees, beautifying unsightly spots, building stone walks and ramps through the parks and over the embankments to the streets, tearing down old and unattractive structures, and putting in equipment to make the parks practical for outdoor recreation centers, as well as beautifying them.

A campaign to enlist the interest and support of civic groups and clubs will be launched soon, Sowers said.

A Farmer's Diary

A TYPICAL Ground Hog day. Indeed, I was just superstitious to walk half a mile to a burrow at dawn this morning, and fill the two openings with snow. Used an old, weathered shingle that he might not scent my hands. Then I left hurriedly to go to work and forgot about it until evening.

About five-thirty I returned with fingers crossed and tongue in cheek, for I know quite well the snow I had packed into each hole would be undisturbed. Not the least wee tiny little atom of snow was moved. I slid down the bank and there about two inches from the bottom was a hole which led directly under the burrow. I looked very carefully and there I saw the groundhog's tracks, both going out and going in. He had legally egressed and regressed. On still more careful examination, I read the tracks as those of yesterday. This was easily discerned, because the snow had melted very slightly as it was sheltered from the sun by the bank above.

An amazing groundhog! The dates on his calendar were blurred, and he had committed an unpardonable woodchuck sin. His Elysian hunting grounds are far separated from him now. His self respect and honor are gone. In fact, the prophet is dead . . . and the weather may be just anything.

GRAFT HUNTERS OUST ATTORNEY FROM HEARING

Move Follows Bitter Dispute After Purchasing Agent Tells About Coal.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS — Clarence Addison, attorney for State Purchasing Agent Glenn Horn, was ordered from the senate graft investigating committee's hearing room today after a bitter dispute.

The argument started when James Metzenbaum, committee counsel, read from a statute book that bids are required on any state purchases over $150.

Horn admitted he had not obeyed this section of the law in connection with state coal purchases.

Addison interruped to tell Metzenbaum that he had "no business" reading the law before the committee and that the line of questioning was irrelevant. Addison shouted to Horn to ignore the questions.

Sen. J. Ralph Seidner, committee chairman, said to Addison:

"Neither you nor any other lawyer is going to come in here and tell us what to do."

Orders Ejection.

He ordered Addison to leave. When Addison refused, Seidner instructed the sergeant-at-arms to eject him. When the officer walked toward Addison, the latter started to leave.

"Has your man done something you are afraid to have him tell about," Sen. Verner Metcalf asked Addison. "Are you afraid to have this man admit he violated the law? Are you afraid he is going to the penitentiary?"

Addison said he was not.

As he reached the door, Metzenbaum called to him and explained the purpose of the questioning.

"If you were a senator and were called on to vote money for such things as coal purchases wouldn't you be interested to learn if the law were being obeyed in those purchases?" he asked Addison.

"The public will suspect that this witness has something to conceal if he refuses to answer questions."

Addison refused to answer Metzenbaum's question, saying he was not a witness.

Sen. Bernard Donovan then said that if Horn refused to answer questions, he would be cited for contempt of the committee.

"That's what I expect you to do," replied Addison, still standing at the door.

Sen. Metcalf again broke in, asking Addison: "Are you employed by Horn or by Governor Davey?"

"Who employes me is my own business," replied Addison.

"Well, I think the governor employs you," said Metcalf.

"I don't care what you think," shouted Addison. "I represent Mr. Horn."

Addison then went out and sat down on a bench outside.

Horn continued to answer the committee's questions, again admitting that he had not obeyed that section of the law which requires bids to be taken on all purchases over $150.

$98,000 Sewer Program to Be Sent to Health Board For Final Approval.

ASHLAND—Tentative plans for approximately eight miles of sanitary sewer lines which would cost close to $98,000 for labor and materials will be sent to the state board of health for approval, city council has decided here after studing them.

Another matter drawing the attention of the local council was the shifting of the meeting from the first and third Tuesday of each month to the first and third Monday, with the shift becoming effective February 14.

An ordinance authorizing the mayor to advertise for bids and to enter into a contract for 4,000 gallons of gasoline and 200 tons of two inch coal for use in the city departments was also passed, and tentative plans for removing traffic congestions in certain parts of the city were taken under advisement, with the probability that a new ordinance will be framed providing for new parking rules.

CRESTLINE—C. J. Frye of West Main street has entered Mercy hospital at Tiffin where he expects to undergo an operation.

JAPS MAP NEW WAR ZONE, WARN ALL FOREIGNERS

Charts Drive on 36,000-Mile Area, Tells Aliens to Mark Their Possessions.

(By Associated Press)

SHANGHAI — (AP) — Japan's armed forces marked out a huge area of east central China as a new war zone today and asked Americans and other foreigners there to leave.

The Japanese embassy spokesman announced the decision under which it was indicated many points would be subjected to bombardment in Nippon's drive to crush Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's Chinese armies.

The request was issued, he said, by the Japanese embassy at Peiping, the "new capital" where Japan has installed its provisional north China government.

American and other foreign embassies there received a note that neutral foreigners in the zone should evacuate and mark their properties so Japanese airmen would not bomb them.

It was recommended that Japanese authorities be given maps showing the location of such properties—most of which are missions—and that the Japanese be notified of the nature of protective markings.

376,000-Mile Area.

Roughly, the area specified in the warning extends from the winding Yangtze river on the south to a line running from the southern coast of Shantung province to Taiyuan, Shansi province capital, on the north.

It encompasses about 376,000 square miles, approximately equal to the combined area of New England, New York, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Ohio, Indiana and Michigan. Normally the population of this area is some 146,000,000.

On the northern and southern borders of the designated war zone's eastern neck, a half million Japanese and Chinese troops are struggling for possession of the Lunghai "lifeline" railway.

Japanese have told of puncturing the southern defenses of the Lunghai corridor by capture of Pengpu, only 90 miles south of Suchow, nerve center of the corridor and at present their main objective.

This advance came after a month in which Japan's war machine was stalled by snow, sleet, blizzards and fierce Chinese resistance. Chinese were said to be digging in for a new stand along the north bank of the Hwai Ho (Misty river) in the face of air and artillery bombardment.

From the corridor's northern fringe, however, Chinese sent word of successful resistance. They said a Chinese force had driven back a Japanese field army 90 miles north of Suchow, with the reorganized Chinese air force aiding ground troops.

Near Pengpu, Japanese were said to have bombarded a number of river junks, killing about 1,000 Chinese soldiers.

mands that "these newspapermen be restrained."

The shouting swelled to a chorus of:

"Throw them out. Throw them out."

Roth explained to the conference that the newsmen had legitimate duties but asked that outsiders in the press section leave.

Just as quiet as restored Shafer, rose in defense of Kaempfer, demanding that the "forgotten man" be allowed to talk.

A guard tried to silence Shafer and sought to push him down into a seat. Shafer sat down but there was no chair and he sprawled on the floor in the midst of laughter from his conferees.

Renews Shouting.

Kaempfer was not to be downed, however. Immediately after approval of the resolutions, he again shouted demands that his plea for more WPA jobs be heard.

He shouted incessantly as the chairman tried to out-shout him over the loud speaker system. Conferees burst out in a demand that Kaempfer be ejected.

Commerce department guards obliged, dragging Kaempfer, still shouting, out of the auditorium.

Meanwhile, Shafer attached a sign to his hat and sat back in his chair to pose for the pictures. The sign said:

"What we need is a Roosevelt for chairman and not a Roper henchman." Shafer listened unperturbed to shouted demands that he be thrown out.

Suddenly, two guards stepped forward. They tilted Shafer's chair and, with him still aboard, dragged the chair out of the auditorium.

The resolutions approved by the conference were drafted by the section of that business meeting which had been considering the loans-to-industry problem.

enough to bring Miss O'Hara to life.

Miss Goddard might make a fine heroine. There seems to be no way of telling. She was a chorine in an Eddie Cantor film when Chaplin met her. He gave her a part as his leading ladys in "Modern Times." She made an appealing-looking waif, but the film was silent. She moved her lips, but not a whisper came out.

Whether she has a tongue sharp enough to give Rhett Butler an impassioned going-over is something that nobody knows. She's occupying the Chaplin home here at the moment Chaplin's in seclusion near San Francisco, supposedly writing the script for a movie in which he intends to star her.

Claims Recession Moderated During Month of January

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The fourth district federal reserve bank reported today that the downward business movement, "which was sharper in the fourth quarter (1937) than in any three-month period on record," moderated somewhat in January, although operations generally continued on a low level.

"In the important lines, such as iron and steel, automobiles, most other metal products, and those lines allied with automobile production such as rubber and glass, operations were on very reduced schedules and chiefly a day-to-day basis," the bank said in its monthly business review.

"The contrast with last year at this time was marked. Strikes were then quite prevalent, and floods were affecting activity in some parts of the district, but unfilled orders were increasing, inventories were rising, plants were having difficulty obtaining some supplies, prices were advancing, and output expanding."

WARNS RELIEF FINANCES SHORT BY 12 MILLIONS

Ferguson Says New Measures Won't Bring Enough Funds to Care For Needy.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson's office warned today that its records show a need for twice the funds provided for 1938 relief expenditures, or roughly $24,000,000.

O. P. Van Schoik, chief relief examiner, said that although approximately $15,000,000 was expected under numerous relief measures passed by the legislature, local government payments to wipe out old relief deficits would reduce the maximum available for the 1938 relief program to about $12,000,000.

"That is just about half enough money," he said. "Either they will have to appropriate more or they've got to find some way to let local governments raise funds."

He said his calculations showed at least 15 counties, including the heavily populated ones of Cuyahoga, Franklin, Lucas, Stark, Montgomery and Summit, will not have enough money to meet requirements for a full year at the present rate of distribution.

Lasts Four Months.

Of these 15, he said Cuyahoga can carry the relief burden for only about four months and others for varying periods up to nine and in one case, possibly 10 months.

He listed the following counties and the respective periods he estimates they can continue relief grants:

Stark, nine months; Summit, seven; Trumbull, eight; Belmont, six; Butler, eight; Clark, six; Columbiana, eight; Cuyahoga, four; Franklin, seven; Lucas, six; Marion, five; Montgomery, eight; Morgan, six; Muskingum, five; Scioto, seven. He said he doubted whether Lawrence county could handle its problem through the entire year.

The auditor's office also displayed concern over relief administration growing out of Governor Davey's veto of two bills establishing a state relief directorate and standards for granting of direct and work relief.

It was strongly intimated that unless the legislature passes other measures—as the governor has requested—or passes the two bills over his veto the auditor's office will be forced into the position of having to act in an administrative capacity.

Jury Weighs Word Of Ex-Bootleggers Against Policeman

CLEVELAND—(AP)— Sergeant James E. Price, a veteran of 30 years in the Cleveland police department, offered his word against that of seven former bootleggers today to a jury which soon will begin deliberations on charges that he solicited and received bribes in prohibition days.

The suspended police officer denied emphatically that he ever had solicited or accepted bribe money.

The former bootleggers had testified that they paid prices from $5 to $50 a month from June, 1926, to January, 1930, as "protection" against raids.

"I never solicited any money at any time and I never received any money in any amount;" Price said.

Wright Takes Stand Again After Collapse at Trial

AIR OFFICIAL RE-TELLS WIFE SLAYING STORY

Defense Attorney Emphasizes 'Cheating' Incident on Piano Bench at Home.

(By Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES — Pallid-faced Paul A. Wright, exhausted from two days of merciless prosecution grilling on how and why he killed Mrs. Wright and John Kimmel, resumed in re-direct examination today his story that he discovered his wife "cheating."

The airport executive's counsel, Jerry Giesler, led him back over much of the testimony he gave during the exhaustive, insistent cross-examination of Prosecutor S. E. Roll, who pounded away at Wright's story until the frail, dyspeptic defendant collapsed and had to be assisted from the courtroom

State Scores Point.

At one point in the relentless questioning, Roll drew the admission from Wright that he did not recall whether he disarranged the clothing of his wife and Kimmel after he shot them. Wright also admitted he did not know whether he picked up any pistol shells.

Wright's defense is that he shot in a "white flame" of anger because he found Mrs. Wright and Kimmel in an unnatural embrace on the piano bench of the Wright living room in Glendale, Nov. 9

Roll asked Wright if he saw them kiss. Wright answered that his wife's back was turned to him. Roll produced a copy of a statement Wright made to Glendale police, saying: "They looked up and smiled and kissed again. All I could think of was to destroy that vision."

"When you saw them you thought there was something unnatural there?" Roll asked.

"Well, I guess so; I don't know."

Can't Remember.

Roll went through Wright's statement to police, sentence by sentence. Wright said he did not remember being asked many of the questions. He said he did remember being fingerprinted.

Wright told Roll he did not recall saying anything to Mrs. Wright and Kimmel when he found them embracing, but Roll quoted from the police statement in which Wright said he asked: "What's all this?"

At this juncture Wright seemed on the verge of fainting, and complained of a severe arm cramp. A bailiff rubbed the arm vigorously, but Wright was so weak that Judge Ingall Bull called a recess and Wright was assisted from the courtroom.

When he returned, Roll began to hammer away on the police statement, and Wright, taut, his face contorted, wilted again.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The post office department has issued a fraud order prohibiting delivery of mail and payment of money orders to General Institute, Inc., General Institute and their officers and agents at St. Louis, Mo.

SEES CONGRESS ADJOURN SOON

Roosevelt Tells Leaders Path Clear For Quitting Day After Mid-March.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt has informed congressional callers that the path is clear for early adjournment of congress — which would give the nation a "breathing spell"—if congress digs in and completes its work.

With the administration's legislative program virtually complete and no last-minute major measures planned for submission to congress, the chief executive believes congress should adjourn long before torrid weather sets in.

On the basis of reports from house leaders, Mr. Roosevelt has gone so far as to tell callers that the house will complete its legislative calendar by March 15. Adjournment, then, he holds, will be up to the senate.

While Mr. Roosevelt has emphasized to callers that none of the major measures laid before congress has been abandoned, he forsees no real obstacle to early action except the senate filibuster on anti-lynching legislation.

The legislative program now includes the $800,000,000 naval expansion program, tax revision, wage-hour bill, government reorganization, and regional planning, with creation of a joint congressional committee to investigate anti-trust laws and monopolies slated to be added.

In his talks with legislators, Mr. Roosevelt has insisted that congress enact legislation for minimum wages and maximum hours. Defeated in the special session, the wage-hour bill now is resting in the house labor committee.

BRITAIN, FRANCE START PATROL OF DANGER ZONE

Expect Orders Soon to Sink Unidentified Craft Seen In Widespread Search.

(By United Press)

LONDON—Forty British and at least 25 French warships cleared for action in the Mediterranean today as an intensified "anto-piracy" patrol began. Together with participating Italian warships, the concentration was greater than at any time since the start of the Spanish civil war.

It was Great Britain's hope that within 48 hours the fleet would have orders to sink on sight without question any submerged submarine, or any submarine on the surface which refused to disclose its identity.

Offer New Proposal.

The "no quarter" proposal, made by Great Britain to France and Italy yesterday, was a new development, the result of British anger over the sinking, presumably by a "pirate" submarine, of the British merchantman Endymion.

Under the Nyon agreement, by which 10 nations agreed on an "anti pirate" patrol, submarines which refused to disclose their identity were to be sunk only if there was valid evidence of piratical intentions.

Unconditional French adherence to the British "no quarter" proposal was expected to reach London today. If the Italian adherence reached London also, it was expected that Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden would make a statement in the House of Commons tonight.

It was anticipated that there might be slight delay in the Italian reply. However, Italian Ambassador Dino Grandi promised Eden yesterday, it was understood, that he would have a reply within 48 hours.

The British admiral already has ordered Admiral Sir Dudley Pound, commander in chief of the Mediterranean fleet, to put all available destroyers on patrol duty

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

WITH the departure for London—now only a few weeks off—of Joseph P. Kennedy, there undoubtedly will be taken from the inner White House circle not only the most clear-headed of the presidential advisers, but the only one who by experience knew the facts about business, and, by personal contact, the influential business figures. That has been said frequently before, but it is worth repeating now because, since he ceased to figure—and that was some time ago—the situation in the aforesaid circle has become such as to justify greater concern.

When Kennedy goes there will be literally no one closely associated with Roosevelt who has a realistic outlook on industry or any industrial experience. Every one of them has an outlook all right, but it is an outlook founded on theory, not on fact, and if there is an experienced business man in this group his name is unknown. It is true Jesse Jones is an extremely successful, highly practical and deeply experienced business man, who has done a fine job in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, but it would be a mistake to regard Jones as of the "inner circle" or to call him an intimate adviser.

WITH KENNEDY GONE, the nearest thing to a conservative adviser is Donald Richberg.

Although everything is relative in this world, it will be agreed that Richberg's conservatism is not entirely undiluted by the "planned economy" ideas of the more advanced of the young liberals of the first term, who appear now to be returning to high presidential favor. Notable among these are Prof. Tugwell, who though still in the molasses business, in recent weeks has been a more frequent White House visitor than generally realized, and Dr. Adolph Berle, the mathematical genius, who was in Washington early in the first term but later left to become city chamberlain under Mayor LaGuardia, because it seemed to him a more fertile field in which to work. He now is understood to have resumed intimate contact with the president and his residence in Washington. Unquestionably brilliant and undoubtedly sincere, Berle thinks in cosmic terms. His flashing thoughts are generally way ahead of his colleagues.

THEN, THERE is young Robert Jackson, the great trust buster; Harold Ickes, whose recent speech blaming the depression on the "sixty families" is an index to his mind; Tommy Corcoran, the fireside writer; Benjamin Cohen, the drafter of White House bills; Leon Henderson, upon whom the president relied for statistical information and whom he thinks a great economist, and Justice Sam Rosenman of New York, the best concealed of the lot but personally very close, indeed, and astute in many ways. That about completes the "inner circle" as at present constituted. That includes all those who at this time can be called the president's "intimate advisers." These are the men with whom he discusses policies first, who know more of his mind than the leaders of congress and have much more weight with him. These are the men of whom the president sees most and whom he listens to most.

AT THE MOMENT they are reported somewhat divided as to the course the president should pursue. Richberg, who has devised an elaborate plan, wants to approach the subject of monopoly regulation and control from one angle; the so-called Jackson group sees it from another. Roosevelt has listened sympathetically to both, but it is not yet certain which way he will incline in the end. It is to be noted the "inner circle" does not now include Dr. Felix Frankfurter, who for four years was its very core. The president has seen very little of Dr. Frankfurter since he launched his attack upon the supreme court. After publication of the change in their relations, there was one White House visit arranged for Dr. Frankfurter with the idea, it is said, of showing that the personal friendship had not been ruptured. That does not alter the fact that Dr. Frankfurter is no longer consulted as he once was—is no longer a policy-forming friend.

* * *

WHEN THIS LIST is considered, it is well calculated to disturb men who believe that the conservative point of view at least ought to be represented among those by whom the president chooses to surround himself and who realize that he never has had a conservative adviser who has lasted. But almost equally disturbing is the disposition of the president to resent the suggestion he lacks that kind of advice and should have it Those who have had opportunities for observation agree the three things which today irritate Roosevelt most are—first, any reference in conversation or print to the present "business recession" as the "Roosevelt depression;" second, the reiteration in print that Kennedy's was the best and most steadying influence he had around him, and, third, any mention of the name of Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The movie history lesson of the week is "Gold Is Where You Find It."

Beautifully photographed in color, this outdoor melodrama covers the fight between hydraulic miners and wheat farmers in the California of 1877. It has vigor and abundant action, a hard-hitting hero of the old school in George Brent, a dyed-in-the-wool villain in Barton MacLane, a fine gentleman who loves his land in Claude Rains, and the unscrupulous lords of big business arrayed against the simple, earth-loyal farmers of the valley.

Most of all it has Olivia de Havilland, whose fresh beauty in the color medium will startle you. It has, for a climax, a smashing flood—brought down by our hero for no apparent reason other than to provide a smashing climax. Michael Curtiz directed.

The week, however, was largely musical. "Everybody Sing" presents the goofy doings of a balmy theatrical family in which Daddy Reginald Owen is a playwright, Mama Billie Burke a stage star, Allan Jones and Fanny Brice the servants, and Lynne Carver and Judy Garland the children. Reginald Gardner is the ham actor, Miss Burke's leading man.

Directed by Edwin L. Marin, the piece keeps pace with its possibilities for humor and song, projects 14-year-old Judy more prominently than before, and gives the Brice humor full opportunity. Less pretentious, less beautifully staged than 'Rosalie,' it's much better entertainment

In "Happy Landing' Sonja Henie in her little Norwegian village falls in love with Cesar Romero, dance band Lothario, and doesn't realize the true worth of Romero's manager, Don Ameche, until she has followed them to America.

From this lean plot germ is grown a pleasant flowering of romantic and comic incident, exciting specialties, and beautiful skating ensembles enough to please the most exacting filmusical—or Henie fan. The net result is, I think, the best of the three Sonja films to date, if you discount the novelty appeal of "One In a Million."

Cesar Romero caricatures a Great Lover amusingly, and Ethel Merman is the "hot and happy" gold-digger. Wally Vernon does, among other things, a "strip tease" to entertain impatient reporters about to walk out on his publicity-hungry boss. The Condes brothers, tappers extraordinar., do a "War Dance for Wooden Indians' 'to the sultry, scintillating music of Raymond Scott's Quintette. El Brendel is back, with a Swedish specialty, and Jean Hersholt. And Don Ameche, as the Real Thing, proves again that he is the screen's most natural romantic leading man. Roy del Ruth directed.

"Paradise for Three" is one of those "surprise" pictures. Robert Young, perennial contest-winner but unemployed, wins a soap slogan award, a vacation at an Alpine hotel. Frank Morgan, soap magnate, wins second prize, incognito, goes to the same resort. There gold-digging Mary Astor; Morgan's valet, Reginald Owen; Morgan's housekeeper, Edna May Oliver; his daughter, Florence Rice; and sundry others become involved in senseless doings—to no good end but light amusement. Eddie Buzzell directed.

Young Man Nuisance To Relatives

By VIRGINIA LEE

My friend, the child psychologist, states that a properly brought up child will respect others' rights and show consideration for them.

That is, he says that if a youngster is trained from his earliest years to wait upon himself when he is able, to respect the possessions of the rest of the family, and to do his share of the household chores, he will be a popular member of any circle, and a good citizen.

Maybe I exaggerate a little, but that is the gist of his theory

Now when a young man, fully grown, goes to live with a relative in a very small apartment, where his mere presence is an inconvenience; when he expects said relatives to pick up after him all the time, to cook his meals, whether they are preparing for the other members of the family or not; when he refuses to lift his hand to help in any way, or to show any appreciation for things that are done for him, I am sure the good psychologist would say he had been very badly spoiled when he was young.

That is what I am sure you have been thinking, my dear Mrs. L. A. I can see no reason why this young relative should clutter up your small place and make such a bore of himself. If he were a little child that you could hope to correct or show the error of his ways, with some hope that he would reform, it would not be so bad. He is, however, of age, capable of taking care of himself, and I feel sure he needs the training he would get in fending for himself and taking his chances at a regular boarding house.

I think your husband shows very little affection or consideration for you in his attitude. Couldn't you leave the two alone for a few weeks—go for a visit—and just see how they get along? Maybe your husband would get a glimpse, then, of what you have been enduring and he would back you up in asking this young relative to move elsewhere.

Recently in this column I answered a letter from YOUNG WIFE. Her trouble was that her husband was perfectly satisfied with his job and his home with wife and children and did not want outsiders in his home. It was too bad, as the husband who works has associates on his job and can easily be contented to stay at home when he gets there But the wife is at home all day and does need a change.

But why make yourself miserable about it? I suggested to the wife: Do your best to help your husband to be sociable, but if he cannot overcome his shyness or whatever it is that makes him that way, have your friends during the daytime. Women can join Parent-Teacher associations, spend occasional afternoons with special friends. So be happy that you have a good home, a kind husband and children.

Moderately slow drying is best for woolen things. They should not be exposed to excessive heat, the direct rays of the sun, or to freezing temperatures Do not hang knitted woolens on the line unless they are firmly knitted, because they are likely to pull out of shape.

Beauty, Utility of Swedish Designs Are Rediscovered By Furniture Makers

American Adaptations of Products Popular In Bedroom Styles.

By MARY DAVIS GILLIES

Prepared by McCall's Magazine for The News-Journal.

EVERY so often, somebody discovers Sweden all over again.

Sweden, for years, has been going on quietly making beautiful (and useful) things for itself and for those who care to discover it.

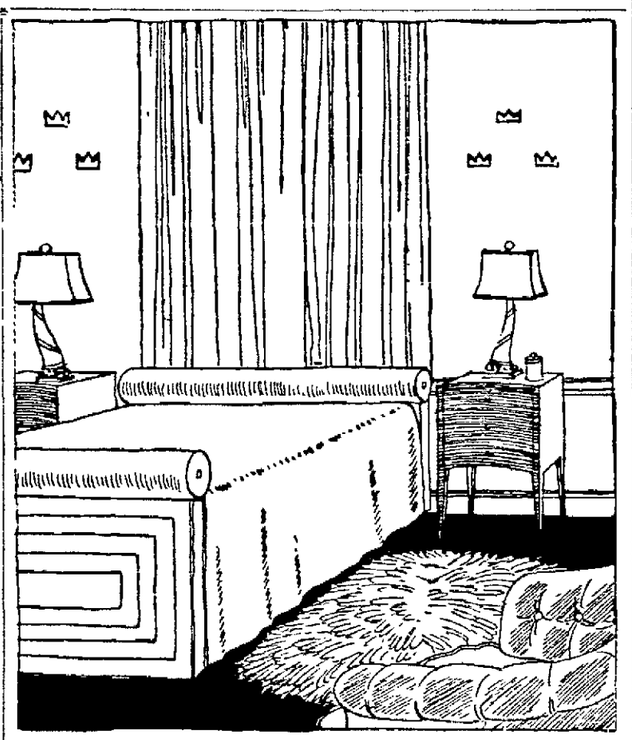
Now the enthusiasm for the Swedish has begun to take in just about everything in home furnishings. A glimpse at a piece of Swedish glass is enough to explain why. Swedish dinnerware not only is good to look at but also practical, in its subtle off-colors with decorations which are modern but which will go well with many schemes.

For rich, rough fabrics, in shaded stripes and plaids, in nubbly basket weaves and knotted and fringed effects — try the Swedish. For delicately-colored lively, but not crazy, wallpaper, for luxurious rugs in grayed pastels — Swedish. And everybody knows how Swedish silverware has become classic.

Now, particularly, it's Swedish furniture, and American makers are offering fine adaptions—not strict copies. In the modern Swedish style, there are more curves, the lines are slender, the colors light. Many chests and buffets have flush drawers and curved corners: mounts are simple metal cylinders or leather handles.

Twin beds in this style have slanted curves in the headboards. Favorite woods are primavera in the new "wheat" finish, mahogany in grayish "leather" or golden-brown "harvest" tones. Upholstered pieces use adaptions of hand loomed fabrics

But you don't have to go modern to go Swedish — Swedish peasant designs include oak and gayly painted furniture, bright prints for draperies, woven cotton rugs and copper accessories.



NORSE INSPIRATION

Curves and slender lines are the characteristics of Swedish design as exemplified in this bedroom.

Moles, Other Marks Can Be Removed

By GLADYS GLAD

"America's Most Famous Beauty."

Back in the days of King Louis XV, the ladies of the French court were much addicted to the wearing of patches These patches were tiny bits of black court plaster that, when pasted on the face, resembled coquettishly situated beauty spots

Beauticians claim that the art of wearing provocative patches is going to be revived by women now, because of the romantic influence of present dress styles.

However, even if this fad does achieve popularity, it will not make natural beauty spots seem any the less detrimental if they are protrusive, large, or too numerous. Such beauty spots—or moles, rather, for there is nothing beautiful about them—are regarded as blemishes today.

Safe Removal Possible.

Fortunately, it is possible to remove ugly or disfiguring moles from the face satisfactorily, provided that a skilled person does the work. The most commonly employed method is by means of the electric needle. The needle is passed through the base of the growth exactly at the level of the skin a number of times, and then passed through the growth an equal number of times at right angles to the first insertions.

Each time that the needle is inserted it liberates caustic soda, which destroys the blood vessels supplying nourishment to the growth often enough to completely destroy the blood supply, the growth, deprived of nourishment, shrivels and eventually drops off.

Moles can be removed from the face satisfactorily by this method. But, as I said previously, be sure a skilled individual only does the work. Don't let any quack work on your face, if you value your appearance, for the removal of moles should be undertaken only by a skilled and reliable person who is thoroughly experienced in the work.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, February 4.

Planetary forces may make this day an unforgettable one. There may be dramatic, mysterious, even tragic events. Nevertheless, business, employment, finances, social and intimate affairs have definite aspects for progress and prosperity, and, whatever the situation, it may develop a great romance, adventure or worthwhile friendship.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of remarkable, extraordinary and memorable experiences, with the private, romantic, emotional or even physical life involved. It may bring contacts of a conspicuous influence on the affairs. But be careful to avoid physical mishaps or perils.

A child born on this day may have an extraordinary nature. While it may be profound, studious, dependable, gentle, gracious, emotional and mystical, it may be robust, sturdy, adventurous and enterprising. It may rise to conspicuous heights in some unusual calling.

Today's Recipes.

Chocolate Fruit Cookies—One cup raisins, one-half package pasteurized dates, three-fourths cup water, four tablespoons butter, one cup sugar, one and one-half cups flour, one-half teaspoon soda, one teaspoon baking powder, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-fourth cup cocoa, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half cup sour milk, one egg, one teaspoon vanilla, one cup nutmeats. Cook sliced dates, water, butter and sugar in saucepan until dates are soft and syrup slightly thick. Drain; measure syrup (should be about three-fourths cup) and cool. Sift flour, soda, baking powder, cocoa, cinnamon and salt together. Add sour milk, beaten egg, vanilla, nutmeats, dates, raisins, syrup. Drop mixture by rounded teaspoonfuls two inches apart on well-oiled baking sheet. Bake in slow oven (250 F.) 15 minutes. Makes about four dozen cookies, and will keep fresh over long period.

Tangerine Cocktail—One and three-fourths cups tangerine juice, one package lemon gelatine, one-fourth cup lemon juice, one cup tangerine sections, finely chopped mint. Heat tangerine juice almost to boiling; pour over gelatine; add lemon juice. Set in pan of ice water, and when thick add tangerine sections, pour into oblong pan; chill thoroughly. To serve, cut into one-half inch squares, pile into cocktail glasses and sprinkle chopped mint, blended with tangerine juice, on top.

DROPPING HONORS

DROPPING unguarded kings or queens seems uncanny to many players Skilled declarers do it usually, though, without having to call on anything as abstruse as intuition, hunches or other psychic phenomena Most of such events, when they are not pure luck, result either from accurate card reading which enables the declarer to locate the helpless honor or from a safety play to protect himself from the danger of an unguarded honor winning.

North and South reached a contract of 3-No Trump on this deal. South having started with 1-No Trump, North jumping to two and South bidding three

When the heart 4 was led, South allowed East's J to hold and the Q was won in the dummy with the A. The club 2 was led and the 8 finessed, which West won with the K. A third heart was led, which South won. A spade was led to the K and the club 4 played from dummy.

When East played the 5, Miss Janet Hardy of Pittsburgh, the declarer, stopped long enough to consider what West held originally. She reasoned that, as West led from a suit of four to the 10 spot, he had no five-card suit, and therefore probably held two clubs. If he had false-carded with the K, he held the Q, as the 10 was placed with East She therefore went right up with the A In this way she made game with three clubs and two tricks in each of the other suits

To clean windows, place 2 tablespoons of ammonia in 2 quarts of water and use without soap. This will give the windows a clear, bright polish.

When hanging pictures remember that the center of the picture should be on the level with the eyes. If you are unusually tall, this rule does not hold good.

When stuffing a chicken or turkey do not fill bird too full. Filling about three-quarters full is better. The dressing in cooking, will have a chance to expand.

CASCO FOR COMMON COLDS

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

MY HUSBAND is usually "quick on the uptake" as he would put it himself, and I am sure that if he had seen my signaling fingers he would not have put the query I was trying to flag But he had bent over his mother to kiss her, and when he raised his head, he saw a plate of peaches on the table. So, as might any small boy, he reached out his hand to take one, putting his query to me without looking directly at me.

"Well, old Dear, how about it?" he asked. "Will it be possible for Mary to go in today? What does Miss Whitlock say, and how does Mary feel about it? But at any rate, now that Miss Whitlock's here to go in with her, there's no use of your staying out here until she gets ready to go. You can go on in with me this morning, can't you, and leave Miss Whitlock to bring Mary?"

Short of calling to him to stop talking, I had done everything possible to signal him quietly that he was "speaking out of turn." But he went blithely on to the end of his query, and then his mother, who fortunately had been watching him, and not me, went into action.

"What on earth do you mean, Richard?" she demanded "Why should you wish Margaret to go in with you, leaving Mary here with a stranger as her only escort into the city? Margaret has told me that you have engaged Miss Whitlock so that Mary may never be without protection, that Mr. Veritzen may never have the opportunity to say that she was alone. But what on earth would he think if he knew that Margaret had gone ahead into the city, and had not even had the courtesy to escort her niece to the suite her father-in-law has prepared for her?"

Demands Explanation.

She stopped for breath, and I threw Dicky an eloquent glance of disapproval and consternation.

He flushed and opened his mouth to speak but his mother was too quick for him.

"I should like to know what you want of Margaret in the city, anyway?" she said, pouncing upon the clue he had dropped as if she were a particularly alert tabby, tossing a mouse from paw to paw. "There's something mighty queer about this I never knew you to have such need of Margaret that you had to take her away from her duty just to accompany you to the city for a whim."

Dicky Is Diplomatic.

"It isn't a whim, Mother," Dicky said, and I knew that he had evolved a story, and would "stick to it."

"I can see now that you have pointed it out to me," he went on "that I am entirely in the wrong. And, of course I shall not think of asking Madge to come up with me, unless Mary is ready to go. But I really do need her in there as soon as she can get there. I have an order for a series of drawings for a novel—historical—really medieval. What I don't know about those periods you could put in a thimble. But they're right down Madge's alley, and I shall have to lean on her very heavily while I'm drawing them. I ought to have been at them days ago, so I'm anxious to get going as soon as I can"

"Well' that's an excuse for wanting her to come in, all right," my mother-in-law admitted, patiently placated, and I breathed freely again.

Worried About Mary.

"But I'm glad you realize that she can't go in until Mary does," she went on. "When do you think Mary will be able to go?" she turned abruptly to me.

I sent a teasing grin at my husband

"I've been trying to tell you Mother, for the last five minutes," I said, "but Dicky talked so fast I couldn't get a word in edgeways. Mary is wild to go in today. She is so upset over Noel's going that she wants to get away from here, and get to work at once. Miss Whitlock has agreed that if Mary stays in bed this forenoon, it will be all right for her to go into the city this afternoon."

"Fiddlesticks!" my mother-in-law exploded, "A lot Miss Whitlock knows about what Mary can stand. Margaret, let me knew as soon as Mary has finished breakfast I'm going up to settle this matter myself."

No, there isn't any trouble, Officer . . . it's just that people have suddenly realized St. Valentine's Day is just around the corner and they're rushing to RITTER'S to make their choice of messages from a full stock of Valentines . . . one never grows too old to be flattered—especially by a Valentine. Ritter's have an excellent variety of Valentines for those of every age . . . sentimental, gay, sincere, flip—"you pays your money and you takes your choice." Prices are ranged to fit every pocketbook. Besides finding your Valentine greetings at Ritter's it's very likely that you'll find those "different" gifts there, too. Leather goods — bags, purses, cigarette cases, wallets, etc. Attractive pictures. Coventry ware. Stationery. And most acceptable gifts . . . books' All at Ritter's—the house of gifts and greetings.

By the way, mister, don't be too smug about thinking you "wormed out of her" just what she wanted for a Valentine gift If she mentioned the new jewelry at REED'S chances are that she's ben hinting for days and is now chuckling up her sleeve at the way she put one over on you. But don't let that stop you . . . because that costume jewelry would bring the sparkle to any girl's eye. It's gay . . . it shines . . . it's just what we need to pull us out of that "will winter never end?" mood. Remember a few weeks ago I told you about the spiders that stand out from your dress very realistically? You should see them now . . . with jeweled bodies and jeweled feet . . . they've come up in the world, and they're still the latest and smartest in jewelry that costs a dollar. Besides these novel pieces there are other new things of interest. Jewelry has gon gay with color . . . opaque or clear, the bets are that you'll have more than three different colored stones in even the smallest clip. Crosses are still definitely in. P. S—If you're pretty sure of the girl's feelings you might give her a crystal ball necklace with your picture in it!

Yours till next Thursday, WYNNIE.

JUNIOR SOROSIS HAS PROGRAM ON 'CHINA'

Mrs. Eugene Linham Discusses War In Far East; Gives Highlights of 'The Importance of Living' by Lin Yutang.

THE GENERAL TOPIC of the talk given by Mrs. Eugene Linham at the regular meeting of the Junior Sorosis at the home of Mrs. Lyle Baumgardner, Courtright boulevard, yesterday was "China." Mrs. Linham highlighted the book "The Importance of Living" by Lin Yutang.

This volume, written by a Chinese author, endeavors to show what the war will do to the Chinese people. The author feels it will produce a new social and economic consciousness, his hope is that it will weed out the minor, the unimportant and the trivial of the military and political leaders.

Generally speaking Yutang hopes that a new China will emerge from the war-torn civilization of the past centuries.

Continuing her subject, Mrs. Linham discussed the "scorched earth policy" which has been adopted by the Chinese military forces. This is the principal of laying waste areas through which the Japanese enemy is expected to come, so that the Japanese cannot either use or damage anything. It is estimated that as a result of this policy, some 16,000,000 people have fled to the interior of China.

Like other nations that have been torn by war and pillage, it is estimated that it will take several generations to restore China to the state it had reached in civilization and economic growth.

Going Crusing? Then Check On Your Behavior

By JOAN DURHAM
(AP Feature Service Writer)

NOW is the time for cruise-minded vacationers to check up ship-board customs and

If you're going on a cruise, says behavior.

Arthur Krapf, general passenger agent of a company operating several cruise boats you won't get the most out of it unless you get into the spirit of the thing.

The cruise-director will make every possible effort to do the necessary ice-breaking. But if he doesn't manage to introduce you to the pretty blond who's traveling with her father, don't sit around in the dumps. Try a smile and speaking up for yourself. If that doesn't work, ask the director if he can manage an introduction.

He'll sound out the girl and make her excuses if she doesn't care to be introduced. (She can say she's resting . . . or otherwise occupied . . . or has to stay with her father.)

What about tipping?

There are two people you must tip: the room steward and the dining room steward (your waiter). Optional are the deck steward (you must tip him if you sit on deck), smoking room and bath stewards, the stewardess (if you're a woman and get seasick) and the bell boys.

Then, if the chief steward does some favor, such as changing your seat in the dining room, you should tip him—not less than a dollar.

Ten Per Cent of Cost.

Your total tips are likely to run about 10 to 15 per cent of the cost on less expensive cruises.

On a seven-day cruise, for instance, the room and dining-room steward each should get about 50 cents a day—of $3.50. The deck steward should get about a dollar for looking after your chair and a little more if you ask for special service. The bath steward, too, rates about a dollar for a short trip, two dollars for a slightly longer one.

Only tip the bell boys, smoking room steward or the stewardess if you call them into service—10 cents up, depending on what they do for you.

JOURNEY CLUB HEARS REVIEW AT MEETING

Mrs. O. H. Schettler Presents Report on 'The Citadel'; Contrasts Medical Profession In England and United States.

MRS. CHARLES SULLENS was hostess yesterday at the Women's Club to 15 members and guests of the Journey club when they held their regular meeting. "The Citadel" by A. J. Cronin was reviewed by Mrs. O. H. Schettler.

This book is the story of a young English doctor who sets out to practice his profession according to the highest ideals. With the ruthlessness of the seemingly selfish world many of his high beliefs are trampled and undermined until finally his only interest in medicine is making money.

Such a complete reversal of policy shocks and humiliates his wife who seeks to encourage him to cling to his principles against the apparent odds. At last, just before her death, she manages to pursuade him. Interwoven with the theme of the story is the contrast of the medical profession as it is in Great Britain and the United States.

Luncheon was served at an attractively decorated table centered with a mixed bouquet of spring flowers and lighted candles. The color scheme was in yellow, green and lavender.

The next meeting will be Feb. 16 with Mrs. W. G. Black as hostess and Mrs. Anna Miller giving the paper on "England's People and Customs."

Young Man Nuisance To Relatives

By VIRGINIA LEE

My friend, the child psychologist, states that a properly brought up child will respect others' rights and show consideration for them.

That is, he says that if a youngster is trained from his earliest years to wait upon himself when he is able, to respect the possessions of the rest of the family, and to do his share of the household chores, he will be a popular member of any circle, and a good citizen.

Maybe I exaggerate a little, but that is the gist of his theory

Now when a young man, fully grown, goes to live with a relative in a very small apartment, where his mere presence is an inconvenience; when he expects said relatives to pick up after him all the time, to cook his meals, whether they are preparing for the other members of the family or not; when he refuses to lift his hand to help in any way, or to show any appreciation for things that are done for him, I am sure the good psychologist would say he had been very badly spoiled when he was young.

That is what I am sure you have been thinking, my dear Mrs. L. A I can see no reason why this young relative should clutter up your small place and make such a bore of himself. If he were a little child that you could hope to correct or show the error of his ways, with some hope that he would reform, it would not be so bad. He is, however, of age, capable of taking care of himself, and I feel sure he needs the training he would get in fending for himself and taking his chances at a regular boarding house.

I think your husband shows very little affection or consideration for you in his attitude. Couldn't you leave the two alone for a few weeks—go for a visit—and just see how they get along? Maybe your husband would get a glimpse, then, of what you have been enduring and he would back you up in asking this young relative to move elsewhere.

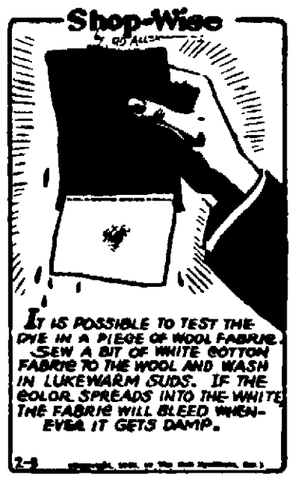
Recently in this column I answered a letter from YOUNG WIFE. Her trouble was that her husband was perfectly satisfied with his job and his home with wife and children and did not want outsiders in his home. It was too bad, as the husband who works has associates on his job and can easily be contented to stay at home when he gets there. But the wife is at home all day and does need a change.

But why make yourself miserable about it? I suggested to the wife: Do your best to help your husband to be sociable, but if he cannot overcome his shyness or whatever it is that makes him that way, have your friends during the daytime. Women can join Parent-Teacher associations, spend occasional afternoons with special friends. So be happy that you have a good home, a kind husband and children.

Moderately slow drying is best for woolen things. They should not be exposed to excessive heat, the direct rays of the sun, or to freezing temperatures. Do not hang knitted woolens on the line unless they are firmly knitted, because they are likely to pull out of shape.

Shop-Wise



IT IS POSSIBLE TO TEST THE DYE IN A PIECE OF WOOL FABRIC. SEW A BIT OF WHITE COTTON FABRIC TO THE WOOL AND WASH IN LUKEWARM SUDS. IF THE COLOR SPREADS INTO THE WHITE THE FABRIC WILL BLEED WHENEVER IT GETS DAMP.

My Neighbor Says:

Dig a three-inch trench around hollyhock plants when the frost is out of the ground. Scatter two small handfuls of dry nitrate of soda into trench then fill with water. When water has seeped into the earth fill trench with dry soil and you will be rewarded with large and beautiful plants.

Put saucers and spoons into ice water before serving ice cream. The cream will not melt and will slip from the spoon more easily when serving.

Beauty, Utility of Swedish Designs Are Rediscovered By Furniture Makers

By MARY DAVIS GILLIES

Prepared by McCall's Magazine for The News-Journal.

EVERY so often, somebody discovers Sweden all over again.

Sweden, for years, has been going on quietly making beautiful (and useful) things for itself and for those who care to discover it.

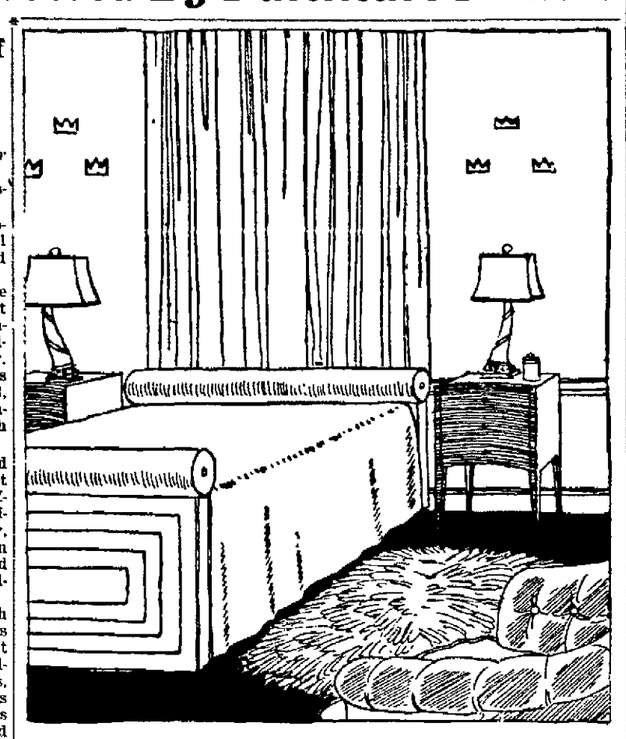
Now the enthusiasm for the Swedish has begun to take in just about everything in home furnishings. A glimpse at a piece of Swedish glass is enough to explain why. Swedish dinnerware not only is good to look at but also practical, in its subtle off-colors with decorations which are modern but which will go well with many schemes.

For rich, rough fabrics, in shaded stripes and plaids, in nubbly basket weaves and knotted and fringed effects — try the Swedish. For delicately-colored lively, but not crazy, wallpaper, for luxurious rugs in grayed pastels — Swedish. And everybody knows how Swedish silverware has become classic

Now, particularly, it's Swedish furniture, and American makers are offering fine adaptions—not strict copies. In the modern Swedish style, there are more curves, the lines are slender, the colors light. Many chests and buffets have flush drawers and curved corners, mounts are simple metal cylinders or leather handles.

Twin beds in this style have slanted curves in the headboards. Favorite woods are primavera in the new "wheat" finish, mahogany in grayish "leather" or golden-brown "harvest" tones. Upholstered pieces use adaptions of hand-loomed fabrics.

But you don't have to go modern to go Swedish — Swedish peasant designs include oak and gayly painted furniture, bright prints for draperies, woven cotton rugs and copper accessories.



NORSE INSPIRATION

Curves and slender lines are the characteristics of Swedish design as exemplified in this bedroom.

Moles, Other Marks Can Be Removed

By GLADYS GLAD

"America's Most Famous Beauty."

Back in the days of King Louis XV, the ladies of the French court were much addicted to the wearing of patches. These patches were tiny bits of black court plaster that, when pasted on the face, resembled coquettishly situated beauty spots.

Beauticians claim that the art of wearing provocative patches is going to be revived by women now, because of the romantic influence of present dress styles

However, even if this fad does achieve popularity, it will not make natural beauty spots seem any the less detrimental if they are protrusive, large, or too numerous. Such beauty spots—or moles, rather, for there is nothing beautiful about them—are regarded as blemishes today.

Safe Removal Possible.

Fortunately, it is possible to remove ugly or disfiguring moles from the face satisfactorily, provided that a skilled person does the work. The most commonly employed method is by means of the electric needle. The needle is passed through the base of the growth exactly at the level of the skin a number of times, and then passed through the growth an equal number of times at right angles to the first insertions.

Each time that the needle is inserted it liberates caustic soda, which destroys the blood vessels supplying nourishment to the growth often enough to completely destroy the blood supply, the growth, deprived of nourishment, shrivels and eventually drops off.

Moles can be removed from the face satisfactorily by this method. But, as I said previously, be sure a skilled individual only does the work. Don't let any quack work on your face, if you value your appearance, for the removal of moles should be undertaken only by a skilled and reliable person who is thoroughly experienced in the work.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, February 4.

Planetary forces may make this day an unforgettable one. There may be dramatic, mysterious, even tragic events. Nevertheless, business, employment, finances, social and intimate affairs have definite aspects for progress and prosperity, and, whatever the situation, it may develop a great romance, adventure or worthwhile friendship.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of remarkable, extraordinary and memorable experiences, with the private, romantic, emotional or even physical life involved. It may bring contacts of a conspicuous influence on the affairs. But be careful to avoid physical mishaps or perils.

A child born on this day may have an extraordinary nature. While it may be profound, studious, dependable, gentle, gracious, emotional and mystical, it may be robust, sturdy, adventurous and enterprising. It may rise to conspicuous heights in some unusual calling.

Today's Recipes.

Chocolate Fruit Cookies—One cup raisins, one-half package pasteurized dates, three-fourths cup water, four tablespoons butter, one cup sugar, one and one-half cups flour, one-half teaspoon soda, one teaspoon baking powder, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-fourth cup cocoa, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half cup sour milk, one egg, one teaspoon vanilla, one cup nutmeats. Cook sliced dates, water, butter and sugar in saucepan until dates are soft and syrup slightly thick. Drain; measure syrup (should be about three-fourths cup) and cool. Sift flour, soda, baking powder, cocoa, cinnamon and salt together. Add sour milk, beaten egg, vanilla, nutmeats, dates, raisins, syrup. Drop mixture by rounded teaspoonfuls two inches apart on well-oiled baking sheet. Bake in slow oven (250 F.) 15 minutes. Makes about four dozen cookies, and will keep fresh over long period.

Tangerine Cocktail—One and three-fourths cups tangerine juice, one package lemon gelatine, one-fourth cup lemon juice, one cup tangerine sections, finely chopped mint. Heat tangerine juice almost to boiling; pour over gelatine; add lemon juice. Set in pan of ice water, and when thick add tangerine sections; pour into oblong pan; chill thoroughly. To serve, cut into one-half inch squares, pile into cocktail glasses and sprinkle chopped mint, blended with tangerine juice, on top.

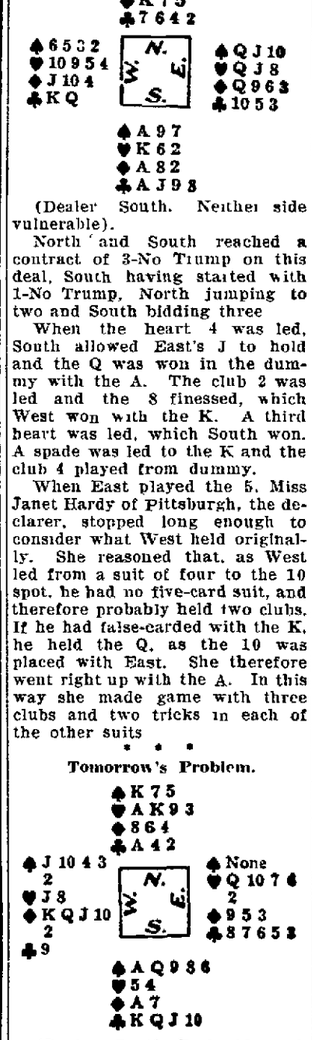
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

DROPPING HONORS

DROPPING unguarded kings or queens seems uncanny to many players. Skilled declarers do it usually, though, without having to call on anything as abstruse as intuition, hunches or other psychic phenomena. Most of such events, when they are not pure luck, result either from accurate card reading which enables the declarer to locate the helpless honor or from a safety play to protect himself from the danger of an unguarded honor winning.



(Dealer South. Neither side vulnerable).

North and South reached a contract of 3-No Trump on this deal, South having started with 1-No Trump, North jumping to two and South bidding three

When the heart 4 was led, South allowed East's J to hold and the Q was won in the dummy with the A. The club 2 was led and the 8 finessed, which West won with the K. A third heart was led, which South won. A spade was led to the K and the club 4 played from dummy.

When East played the 5, Miss Janet Hardy of Pittsburgh, the declarer, stopped long enough to consider what West held originally. She reasoned that, as West led from a suit of four to the 10 spot, he had no five-card suit, and therefore probably held two clubs. If he had false-carded with the K, he held the Q, as the 10 was placed with East. She therefore went right up with the A. In this way she made game with three clubs and two tricks in each of the other suits

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer South. Both sides vulnerable).

What is South's safest play for 4-Spades doubled by West, the diamond K being the opening lead?

To clean windows, place 2 tablespoons of ammonia in 2 quarts of water and use without soap. This will give the windows a clear, bright polish.

When hanging pictures remember that the center of the picture should be on the level with the eyes. If you are unusually tall, this rule does not hold good.

When stuffing a chicken or turkey do not fill bird too full. Filling about three quarters full is better. The dressing in cooking, will have a chance to expand.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

MY HUSBAND is usually "quick on the uptake," as he would put it himself, and I am sure that if he had seen my signaling fingers he would not have put the query I was trying to flag. But he had bent over his mother to kiss her, and when he raised his head, he saw a plate of peaches on the table. So, as might any small boy, he reached out his hand to take one, putting his query to me without looking directly at me

"Well, old Dear, how about it?" he asked. "Will it be possible for Mary to go in today? What does Miss Whitlock say, and how does Mary feel about it? But at any rate, now that Miss Whitlock's here to go in with her, there's no use of your staying out here until she gets ready to go. You can go on in with me this morning, can't you, and leave Miss Whitlock to bring Mary?"

Short of calling to him to stop talking, I had done everything possible to signal him quietly that he was "speaking out of turn." But he went blithely on to the end of his query, and then his mother, who fortunately had been watching him, and not me, went into action.

"What on earth do you mean, Richard?" she demanded. "Why should you wish Margaret to go in with you, leaving Mary here with a stranger as her only escort into the city? Margaret has told me that you have engaged Miss Whitlock so that Mary may never be without protection, that Mr. Veritzen may never have the opportunity to say that she was alone. But what on earth would he think if he knew that Margaret had gone ahead into the city, and had not even had the courtesy to escort her niece to the suite her father-in-law has prepared for her?"

Demands Explanation.

She stopped for breath, and I threw Dicky an eloquent glance of disapproval and consternation.

He flushed and opened his mouth to speak, but his mother was too quick for him.

"I should like to know what you want of Margaret in the city, anyway?" she said, pouncing upon the clue he had dropped as if she were a particularly alert tabby, tossing a mouse from paw to paw. "There's something mighty queer about this. I never knew you to have such need of Margaret that you had to take her away from her duty just to accompany you to the city for a whim."

Dicky Is Diplomatic.

"It isn't a whim, Mother," Dicky said, and I knew that he had evolved a story, and would "stick to it."

"I can see now that you have pointed it out to me," he went on, "that I am entirely in the wrong. And, of course, I shall not think of asking Madge to come up with me, unless Mary is ready to go. But I really do need her in there as soon as she can get there. I have an order for a series of drawings for a novel—historical—really medieval. What I don't know about those periods you could put in a thimble But they're right down Madge's alley, and I shall have to lean on her very heavily while I'm drawing them. I ought to have been at them days ago, so I'm anxious to get going as soon as I can"

"Well! that's an excuse for wanting her to come in, all right," my mother-in-law admitted, patiently placated, and I breathed freely again.

Worried About Mary.

"But I'm glad you realize that she can't go in until Mary does," she went on. "When do you think Mary will be able to go?" she turned abruptly to me.

I sent a teasing grin at my husband

"I've been trying to tell you, Mother, for the last five minutes," I said, "but Dicky talked so fast I couldn't get a word in edgeways. Mary is wild to go in today. She is so upset over Noel's going that she wants to get away from here, and get to work at once. Miss Whitlock has agreed that if Mary stays in bed this forenoon, it will be all right for her to go into the city this afternoon."

"Fiddlesticks!" my mother-in-law exploded. "A lot Miss Whitlock knows about what Mary can stand. Margaret, let me knew as soon as Mary has finished breakfast. I'm going up to settle this matter myself."

JUNIOR SOROSIS HAS PROGRAM ON 'CHINA'

Mrs. Eugene Linham Discusses War In Far East; Gives Highlights of 'The Importance of Living' by Lin Yutang.

THE GENERAL TOPIC of the talk given by Mrs. Eugene Linham at the regular meeting of the Junior Sorosis at the home of Mrs. Lyle Baumgardner, Courtright boulevard, yesterday was "China." Mrs. Linham highlighted the book "The Importance of Living" by Lin Yutang.

This volume, written by a Chinese author, endeavors to show what the war will do to the Chinese people. The author feels it will produce a new social and economic consciousness, his hope is that it will weed out the minor, the unimportant and the trivial of the military and political leaders.

Generally speaking Yutang hopes that a new China will emerge from the war-torn civilization of the past centuries.

Continuing her subject, Mrs. Linham discussed the "scorched earth policy" which has been adopted by the Chinese military forces This is the principal of laying waste areas through which the Japanese enemy is expected to come, so that the Japanese cannot either use or damage anything. It is estimated that as a result of this policy, some 16 000,000 people have fled to the interior of China.

Like other nations that have been torn by war and pillage, it is estimated that it will take several generations to restore China to the state it had reached in civilization and economic growth.

Going Crusing? Then Check On Your Behavior

By JOAN DURHAM
(AP Feature Service Writer)

NOW is the time for cruise-minded vacationers to check up ship-board customs and

If you're going on a cruise, says behavior.

Arthur Krapf, general passenger agent of a company operating several cruise boats you won't get the most out of it unless you get into the spirit of the thing.

The cruise-director will make every possible effort to do the necessary ice-breaking. But if he doesn't manage to introduce you to the pretty blond who's traveling with her father, don't sit around in the dumps. Try a smile and speaking up for yourself. If that doesn't work, ask the director if he can manage an introduction.

He'll sound out the girl and make her excuses if she doesn't care to be introduced. (She can say she's resting . . . or otherwise occupied . . . or has to stay with her father.)

What about tipping?

There are two people you must tip: the room steward and the dining room steward (your waiter). Optional are the deck steward (you must tip him if you sit on deck), smoking room and bath stewards, the stewardess (if you're a woman and get seasick) and the bell boys.

Then, if the chief steward does some favor, such as changing your seat in the dining room, you should tip him—not less than a dollar.

Ten Per Cent of Cost.

Your total tips are likely to run about 10 to 15 per cent of the cost on less expensive cruises.

On a seven-day cruise, for instance, the room and dining-room steward each should get about 50 cents a day—of $3.50. The deck steward should get about a dollar for looking after your chair and a little more if you ask for special service. The bath steward, too, rates about a dollar for a short trip, two dollars for a slightly longer one.

Only tip the bell boys, smoking room steward or the stewardess if you call them into service—10 cents up, depending on what they do for you.

JOURNEY CLUB HEARS REVIEW AT MEETING

Mrs. O. H. Schettler Presents Report on 'The Citadel'; Contrasts Medical Profession In England and United States.

MRS. CHARLES SULLENS was hostess yesterday at the Women's Club to 15 members and guests of the Journey club when they held their regular meeting. "The Citadel" by A. J. Cronin was reviewed by Mrs. O. H. Schettler.

This book is the story of a young English doctor who sets out to practice his profession according to the highest ideals. With the ruthlessness of the seemingly selfish world many of his high beliefs are trampled and undermined until finally his only interest in medicine is making money.

Such a complete reversal of policy shocks and humiliates his wife who seeks to encourage him to cling to his principles against the apparent odds At last, just before her death, she manages to pursuade him. Interwoven with the theme of the story is the contrast of the medical profession as it is in Great Britain and the United States.

Luncheon was served at an attractively decorated table centered with a mixed bouquet of spring flowers and lighted candles. The color scheme was in yellow, green and lavender.

The next meeting will be Feb. 16 with Mrs. W. G. Black as hostess and Mrs. Anna Miller giving the paper on "England's People and Customs."

Young Man Nuisance To Relatives

By VIRGINIA LEE

My friend, the child psychologist, states that a properly brought up child will respect others' rights and show consideration for them.

That is, he says that if a youngster is trained from his earliest years to wait upon himself when he is able, to respect the possessions of the rest of the family, and to do his share of the household chores, he will be a popular member of any circle, and a good citizen.

Maybe I exaggerate a little, but that is the gist of his theory

Now when a young man, fully grown, goes to live with a relative in a very small apartment, where his mere presence is an inconvenience; when he expects said relatives to pick up after him all the time, to cook his meals, whether they are preparing for the other members of the family or not; when he refuses to lift his hand to help in any way, or to show any appreciation for things that are done for him, I am sure the good psychologist would say he had been very badly spoiled when he was young.

That is what I am sure you have been thinking, my dear Mrs. L. A. I can see no reason why this young relative should clutter up your small place and make such a bore of himself. If he were a little child that you could hope to correct or show the error of his ways, with some hope that he would reform, it would not be so bad. He is, however, of age, capable of taking care of himself, and I feel sure he needs the training he would get in fending for himself and taking his chances at a regular boarding house.

I think your husband shows very little affection or consideration for you in his attitude. Couldn't you leave the two alone for a few weeks—go for a visit—and just see how they get along? Maybe your husband would get a glimpse, then, of what you have been enduring and he would back you up in asking this young relative to move elsewhere.

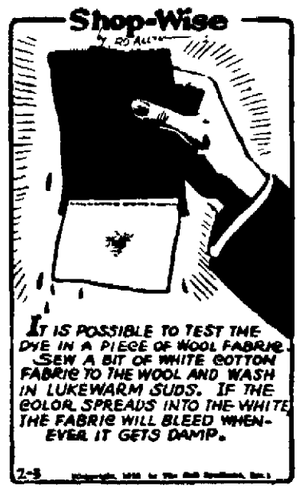
Recently in this column I answered a letter from YOUNG WIFE. Her trouble was that her husband was perfectly satisfied with his job and his home with wife and children and did not want outsiders in his home. It was too bad, as the husband who works has associates on his job and can easily be contented to stay at home when he gets there But the wife is at home all day and does need a change.

But why make yourself miserable about it? I suggested to the wife: Do your best to help your husband to be sociable, but if he cannot overcome his shyness or whatever it is that makes him that way, have your friends during the daytime. Women can join Parent-Teacher associations, spend occasional afternoons with special friends. So be happy that you have a good home, a kind husband and children.

Moderately slow drying is best for woolen things. They should not be exposed to excessive heat, the direct rays of the sun, or to freezing temperatures Do not hang knitted woolens on the line unless they are firmly knitted, because they are likely to pull out of shape.



Shop-Wise
IT IS POSSIBLE TO TEST THE DYE IN A PIECE OF WOOL FABRIC. SEW A BIT OF WHITE COTTON FABRIC TO THE WOOL AND WASH IN LUKEWARM SUDS. IF THE COLOR SPREADS INTO THE WHITE, THE FABRIC WILL BLEED WHENEVER IT GETS DAMP.

My Neighbor Says:

Dig a three-inch trench around hollyhock plants when the frost is out of the ground. Scatter two small handfuls of dry nitrate of soda into trench then fill with water. When water has seeped into the earth fill trench with dry soil and you will be rewarded with large and beautiful plants.

Put saucers and spoons into ice water before serving ice cream. The cream will not melt and will slip from the spoon more easily when serving

Beauty, Utility of Swedish Designs Are Rediscovered By Furniture Makers

By MARY DAVIS GILLIES

Prepared by McCall's Magazine for The News-Journal.

EVERY so often, somebody discovers Sweden all over again.

Sweden, for years, has been going on quietly making beautiful (and useful) things for itself and for those who care to discover it.

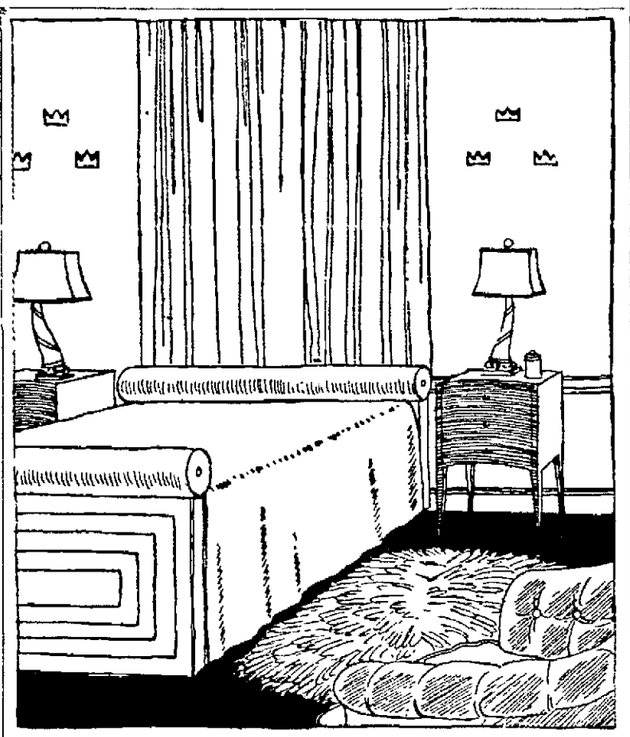
Now the enthusiasm for the Swedish has begun to take in just about everything in home furnishings. A glimpse at a piece of Swedish glass is enough to explain why. Swedish dinnerware not only is good to look at but also practical, in its subtle off-colors with decorations which are modern but which will go well with many schemes.

For rich, rough fabrics, in shaded stripes and plaids, in nubbly basket weaves and knotted and fringed effects — try the Swedish. For delicately-colored lively, but not crazy, wallpaper, for luxurious rugs in grayed pastels — Swedish And everybody knows how Swedish silverware has become classic.

Now, particularly, it's Swedish furniture, and American makers are offering fine adaptions—not strict copies. In the modern Swedish style, there are more curves, the lines are slender, the colors light Many chests and buffets have flush drawers and curved corners; mounts are simple metal cylinders or leather handles

Twin beds in this style have slanted curves in the headboards. Favorite woods are primavera in the new "wheat" finish, mahogany in grayish "leather" or golden-brown "harvest" tones Upholstered pieces use adaptions of hand-loomed fabrics

But you don't have to go modern to go Swedish — Swedish peasant designs include oak and gayly painted furniture, bright prints for draperies, woven cotton rugs and copper accessories.



NORSE INSPIRATION

Curves and slender lines are the characteristics of Swedish design as exemplified in this bedroom.

Moles, Other Marks Can Be Removed

By GLADYS GLAD

"America's Most Famous Beauty."

Back in the days of King Louis XV, the ladies of the French court were much addicted to the wearing of patches. These patches were tiny bits of black court plaster that, when pasted on the face, resembled coquettishly situated beauty spots

Beauticians claim that the art of wearing provocative patches is going to be revived by women now, because of the romantic influence of present dress styles.

However, even if this fad does achieve popularity, it will not make natural beauty spots seem any the less detrimental if they are protrusive, large, or too numerous. Such beauty spots—or moles, rather, for there is nothing beautiful about them—are regarded as blemishes today.

Safe Removal Possible.

Fortunately, it is possible to remove ugly or disfiguring moles from the face satisfactorily, provided that a skilled person does the work. The most commonly employed method is by means of the electric needle. The needle is passed through the base of the growth exactly at the level of the skin a number of times, and then passed through the growth an equal number of times at right angles to the first insertions.

Each time that the needle is inserted it liberates caustic soda, which destroys the blood vessels supplying nourishment to the growth often enough to completely destroy the blood supply, the growth, deprived of nourishment, shrivels and eventually drops off.

Moles can be removed from the face satisfactorily by this method. But, as I said previously, be sure a skilled individual only does the work. Don't let any quack work on your face, if you value your appearance, for the removal of moles should be undertaken only by a skilled and reliable person who is thoroughly experienced in the work

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, February 4.

Planetary forces may make this day an unforgettable one. There may be dramatic, mysterious, even tragic events. Nevertheless, business, employment, finances, social and intimate affairs have definite aspects for progress and prosperity, and, whatever the situation, it may develop a great romance, adventure or worthwhile friendship.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of remarkable, extraordinary and memorable experiences, with the private, romantic, emotional or even physical life involved. It may bring contacts of a conspicuous influence on the affairs. But be careful to avoid physical mishaps or perils.

A child born on this day may have an extraordinary nature. While it may be profound, studious, dependable, gentle, gracious, emotional and mystical, it may be robust, sturdy, adventurous and enterprising. It may rise to conspicuous heights in some unusual calling.

Today's Recipes.

Chocolate Fruit Cookies—One cup raisins, one-half package pasteurized dates, three-fourths cup water, four tablespoons butter, one cup sugar, one and one-half cups flour, one-half teaspoon soda, one teaspoon baking powder, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-fourth cup cocoa, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half cup sour milk, one egg, one teaspoon vanilla, one cup nutmeats. Cook sliced dates, water, butter and sugar in saucepan until dates are soft and syrup slightly thick. Drain; measure syrup (should be about three-fourths cup) and cool. Sift flour, soda, baking powder, cocoa, cinnamon and salt together. Add sour milk, beaten egg, vanilla, nutmeats, dates, raisins, syrup. Drop mixture by rounded teaspoonfuls two inches apart on well-oiled baking sheet. Bake in slow oven (250 F.) 15 minutes. Makes about four dozen cookies, and will keep fresh over long period.

Tangerine Cocktail—One and three-fourths cups tangerine juice, one package lemon gelatine, one-fourth cup lemon juice, one cup tangerine sections, finely chopped mint. Heat tangerine juice almost to boiling; pour over gelatine; add lemon juice. Set in pan of ice water, and when thick add tangerine sections; pour into oblong pan; chill thoroughly. To serve, cut into one-half inch squares, pile into cocktail glasses and sprinkle chopped mint, blended with tangerine juice, on top.

"The Authority on Authorities"

DROPPING HONORS

DROPPING unguarded kings or queens seems uncanny to many players. Skilled declarers do it usually, though, without having to call on anything as abstruse as intuition, hunches or other psychic phenomena Most of such events, when they are not pure luck, result either from accurate card reading which enables the declarer to locate the helpless honor or from a safety play to protect himself from the danger of an unguarded honor winning.

North and South reached a contract of 3-No Trump on this deal, South having started with 1-No Trump, North jumping to two and South bidding three

When the heart 4 was led, South allowed East's J to hold and the Q was won in the dummy with the A. The club 2 was led and the 8 finessed, which West won with the K A third heart was led, which South won. A spade was led to the K and the club 4 played from dummy.

When East played the 5, Miss Janet Hardy of Pittsburgh, the declarer, stopped long enough to consider what West held originally She reasoned that, as West led from a suit of four to the 10 spot, he had no five-card suit, and therefore probably held two clubs. If he had false-carded with the K, he held the Q, as the 10 was placed with East. She therefore went right up with the A. In this way she made game with three clubs and two tricks in each of the other suits

What is South's safest play for 4-Spades doubled by West, the diamond K being the opening lead?

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

MY HUSBAND is usually "quick on the uptake" as he would put it himself, and I am sure that if he had seen my signaling fingers he would not have put the query I was trying to flag But he had bent over his mother to kiss her, and when he raised his head, he saw a plate of peaches on the table. So, as might any small boy, he reached out his hand to take one, putting his query to me without looking directly at me.

"Well, old Dear, how about it?" he asked. "Will it be possible for Mary to go in today? What does Miss Whitlock say, and how does Mary feel about it? But at any rate, now that Miss Whitlock's here to go in with her, there's no use of your staying out here until she gets ready to go. You can go on in with me this morning, can't you, and leave Miss Whitlock to bring Mary?"

Short of calling to him to stop talking, I had done everything possible to signal him quietly that he was "speaking out of turn." But he went blithely on to the end of his query, and then his mother, who fortunately had been watching him, and not me, went into action.

"What on earth do you mean, Richard?" she demanded. "Why should you wish Margaret to go in with you, leaving Mary here with a stranger as her only escort into the city? Margaret has told me that you have engaged Miss Whitlock so that Mary may never be without protection, that Mr. Veritzen may never have the opportunity to say that she was alone. But what on earth would he think if he knew that Margaret had gone ahead into the city, and had not even had the courtesy to escort her niece to the suite her father-in-law has prepared for her?"

Demands Explanation.

She stopped for breath, and I threw Dicky an eloquent glance of disapproval and consternation.

He flushed and opened his mouth to speak, but his mother was too quick for him.

"I should like to know what you want of Margaret in the city, anyway?" she said, pouncing upon the clue he had dropped as if she were a particularly alert tabby, tossing a mouse from paw to paw. "There's something mighty queer about this. I never knew you to have such need of Margaret that you had to take her away from her duty just to accompany you to the city for a whim."

Dicky Is Diplomatic.

"It isn't a whim, Mother," Dicky said, and I knew that he had evolved a story, and would 'stick to it."

"I can see now that you have pointed it out to me," he went on "that I am entirely in the wrong. And, of course, I shall not think of asking Madge to come up with me, unless Mary is ready to go. But I really do need her in there as soon as she can get there. I have an order for a series of drawings for a novel—historical—really medieval What I don't know about those periods you could put in a thimble. But they're right down Madge's alley, and I shall have to lean on her very heavily while I'm drawing them. I ought to have been at them days ago, so I'm anxious to get going as soon as I can"

"Well! that's an excuse for wanting her to come in, all right," my mother-in-law admitted, patiently placated, and I breathed freely again.

Worried About Mary.

"But I'm glad you realize that she can't go in until Mary does," she went on. "When do you think Mary will be able to go?" she turned abruptly to me.

I sent a teasing grin at my husband.

"I've been trying to tell you, Mother, for the last five minutes," I said, "but Dicky talked so fast I couldn't get a word in edgeways. Mary is wild to go in today. She is so upset over Noel's going that she wants to get away from here, and get to work at once Miss Whitlock has agreed that if Mary stays in bed this forenoon, it will be all right for her to go into the city this afternoon.'

"Fiddlesticks!" my mother-in-law exploded, "A lot Miss Whitlock knows about what Mary can stand Margaret, let me knew as soon as Mary has finished breakfast. I'm going up to settle this matter myself."
